MOSCOW, April 2.—Tribune Radio—Vicar General Budkiewicz of the Roman Catholic church was alive in his cell tonight. This much can now be told.

MOSCOW, April 1.—The religious situation in Russia presents a series of contrasts approaching paradoxes. In one ancient church you see devout worshipping with traditions 1,000 years old, and in another there is a new movie with hilarious laughter at the antics of an American comedian. Russian countenances both.

The czar's government suppressed the Roman Catholic, Jewish, and other religions, except the established Greek Catholic church. The soviet government declares itself tolerant of any religion and also tolerant of lack of religion. Anti-Jew and anti-Christ march together.

Take today's contrast. It is Palm Sunday for the Greek Catholic church, Easter for the Roman Catholics, and Passover for the Jews. At the services in the Greek Catholic church thousands of persons, mostly women, crowd the hall, hardly permitting the worshippers to kneel. There were great processions before the Roman Catholic church, with endless masses. Persons crowded themselves three times on going in and three times on coming out, while hundreds of beggars got million ruble notes with which to buy food.

The Anti-Religious Side.

Now, the other side of the picture. Take this morning's three newspapers and read these items under the following date lines: Petrograd, "Polish university students at a meeting approved the death sentence of Vicar General Botkiewicz, "Eharkof." The peasants at Odessa Gubernie turned the Greek church into an orphanage"; Memel, "Jewish laborers decided to work through the Passover and to hold anti-Passover demonstrations. The city council decided to requisition one-third of the churches and synagogues for homeless children, altogether fifteen buildings."

At Tiflis the Georgian peasants have decided to cut off the priests' pay, make a reading room of the church, and use the bronze of the church bells for money to educate their sons. At Khar'kov the Jewish council of workers passed a resolution of workers to close the synagogues, which are centers of reaction, chauvinism, and Zionism, and open them as centers of communist education."

Thus daily the anti-religious movement is reported in the press. Chiefly concerned in the movement is the League of communist youths which Lenin, Trotsky, and Bucharin are the leaders of. They are the hope of the world. The members are largely university and upper school students, and they shall their first large anti-religious demonstration last Christmas.

Religion Called Oppression Weapon.

But what is really back of the situation? Probably the best answer is given by M. Bucharin, editor of the Pravda, who, taking Karl Marx's "Religion is the opium of the people," explains further:

"It is the task of the communist party to make this truth comprehensible to the widest possible circle of the laboring classes. It is the task of the party to impress firmly upon the minds of the workers, even the most backward, that religion in the past and even today has been one of the most powerful means of disposal of oppression for the maintenance of inequality and the exploitation of slaves and serfs on the part of the toilers. Religion and communism are incompatible both practically and theoretically."

The very idea of God and supernatural powers arises at a definite stage in human history and at another stage begins to disappear, as the world finds no confirmation in practical life in the struggle between the classes. The communist who rejects the commandments of religion ceases to be one of the faithful and on the other hand any one calling himself a communist who continues to cling to religious tenets comes thereby to be a communist."

Fight Religious Influences.

Such are the tenets of the communist party which is an international party with branches throughout the world.

Albert E. Guimares, the man in the fur coat, admires of the model, and to whom she was said to have made many gifts, also was interested in the brokerage house, Geraty said.

Made $75,000 a Year.

Miss Keenan, who was known on Broadway as Dorothy "King," backed the company with large sums of money, Geraty said he was told by Guimares. "King & Scott," he said, was affiliated with another brokerage house, "Stoddard & Sandborn," in which Guimares also held an interest and through which he was reported to have made from $75,000 to $100,000 a year.

The extent of Miss Keenan's holdings was not revealed. Authorities immediately began an investigation into her association with the firm. It was indicated that Guimares acted for her in its management and that she had advanced the greater portion of the capital.

Police declare that a new angle into Miss Keenan's mysterious murder might develop from an investigation into her activities as a stock broker.

Trail to Slayer Narrows.

With the police assuming sole responsibility for the capture of the model's slayer, a police official today asserted the trail was narrowing.

The process of elimination had progressed to the point where only two persons remain as the target of the investigation. Betraying the fact that the drug bottle was a cardinal clue, headquarters began a city-wide hunt for the pharmacy where the chloroform was bought.

The process of elimination had progressed to the point where only two persons remain as the target of the investigation. Betraying the fact that the drug bottle was a cardinal clue, headquarters began a city-wide hunt for the pharmacy where the chloroform was bought.

Instructions were read in all stations to the men going out on tour to visit all drug stores on their posts and inquire about sales of chloroform. They were told that whenever a sale was reported the purchaser was to be looked up and asked to explain.

Serial Number Erased.

The policemen were reminded to be especially vigilant in trading sales of four ounce bottles. A bottle of this size was employed in the slaying of Dorothy Keenan, and before emptying the drug the murderer carefully erased the small serial number which would have afforded the detectives a direct clue to the place it was sold.

In addition to this activity two detective teams were reported to be in Atlantic City tracing a story concerning a woman who was there early in April.

According to the report, Dorothy Keenan and two men friends created a scene in a boardwalk hotel and when arrested for disorderly conduct fled their bonds.

Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora said he was ready to aid in the investigation if the police would him and declared he believed blackmail rather than robbery was the motive. Mr. Pecora joined the police in expressing confidence that an arrest was merely a matter of time.

Far West Asks Jury Inquiry on Life in Capital

Spokane, Wash., April 2.—Petitions asking a federal grand jury investigation of statements of alleged misconduct in Washington, D. C., society circles, will be circulated in leading Pacific coast cities, it was announced tonight by H. C. Harris, chairman of a citizens' committee arranging for the petitions.

This was the latest development of the furor started by newspaper articles by Mrs. Elizabeth G. Poindexter, wife of former Senator Miles Poindexter of this state, now ambassador to Peru, detailing gambling and drinking episodes as every day affairs in the nation's capital.

Mrs. Poindexter was the "special correspondent" of the Spokesman-Review. Her articles were first noted for their bitterly sarcastic references to officials and leaders in Washington.

Letter to Mayor.

More recently they became severe in their condemnation of the social habits of the people of the capital.

Recently the local Woman's Christian Temperance union forwarded to the state's representatives in Washington, resolutions commanding Mrs. Poindexter for "fearlessly exposing a society that had become corrupt while under the protection of the exemption granted by law to our lawmakers while in their official capacity in the capital."

What They're Curious About.

The resolutions then asked that Mrs. Poindexter reveal, among other things: "What is the name of the senator whose wife was an expectant mother, who was dizzy with strong drink?"

"Who was the farm bloc senator who would not give his wife large sums of money to gamble with?"

"What modern apartment house in Washington has a liquor tester as a part of its equipment?"

Harris stated that the petitions would be circulated in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Denver, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, Salt Lake City, and Spokane and would be sent to Attorney General Daugherty.

"We cannot enforce the law if lawmakers are lawbreakers," will be the campaign motto of the petitioners, he said.

MAN ENDS LIFE;
COUPLE SAVED
IN SUICIDE PACT

Martin Swenson, 61 years old, 220 North Leclaire avenue, committed suicide late yesterday by shooting himself in the head. Two other persons, a man and woman of middle age, were saved from death, presumably in a suicide pact, when they were rescued from a gas filled room at 1347 West Jackson boulevard.

The man's name was Julius Kluge. The woman gave her as Irene Durham. They were each between 40 and 45 years of age.

The couple were found lying across the bed in their room, their hands clasped, when another roomer, detecting the odor of gas, entered to investigate.

The man and woman were taken to the county hospital, where physicians said they would recover.

AERIAL FLIVVER
GOES 125 MILES
ON GALLON GAS

PARIS, April 2.—Georges Barbot is reported to have remained in the air at Toulouse yesterday for a quarter of an hour in a glider equipped with a motor of only seven horsepower. Barbot took off, flew, and landed without difficulty.

Barbot, a half hour earlier, had landed at Biskra in Algeria.

The motorized glider used is said to be capable of reaching an elevation of a mile and a half and a speed of 65 miles an hour, making 125 miles on one gallon of gasoline.

Barbot is credited unofficially with exceeding Lieutenant Maneyrol's gliding record by remaining aloft at Biskra for 8 hours 36 minutes 55 seconds in an airplane with the motor dead.

for the privilege of telling you what jackasses you are for supporting either Lueder or Dever."

Keep at Religious Issue.

In various parts of the city, by word of mouth, the religious issue continued to be hammered on—right up to the finish. And at one of the final noonday meetings for Dever at the La Salle theater, Raymond Robins brought the Ku Klux Klan to the fore.

"There have been cowardly white powers," he said, "who sought to do the right. Judge Dever has lost his faith. They sought to do it by passing around little, lying cards, unsigned. These whisperers will know after election that methods which might do in the backwoods of the old south will never do in present day Chicago."

"They will never put the klanje of the Ku Klux in the city hall."

Robins, a member of his state delegation, is of German descent. "They wanted a man who could get the vote of the German people away from Thompson," he said. "They picked Arthur C. Lueder, who for twelve years has been secretary of the German club."

Dismissed by Editor.

A new printed slip circulated through subterranean channels purported to be a reprint from "Our Sunday Visitor," a Roman Catholic paper published at Huntington, Ind. Inquiry at Huntington is said to have reached a point where the paper never published the text charged up to it.

It was signed "Catholics Beware" with a cross in each of the upper corners, and the text in part was as follows:

"Vote only for Catholics or those who are known to be broadminded in their attitude toward the church. Do not cast your votes to the enemies of our cause—by supporting a single candidate whose name is published on the good government ticket."

Real Nature Obvious.

This was signed "Catholic Welfare League," and below a ruled line in different type were the words: "Help us make American dominantly Catholic by voting for William E. Dever for mayor."

Democratic leaders denounced this leaflet as "so ridiculous on the face of it that its real nature is obvious." It was added to their development that it was distributed that thousands of free copies of the Chicago "Suffrage Monitor" have been distributed in Chicago during the last two weeks. The issues circulated have contained articles favoring Lueder and mentioning the fact that Dever is a Roman Catholic.

Both Sides Confident.

Protests of confidence came more strongly from the Democratic camp than from the Republicans. The firm official statement of Martin J. O'Brien, spokesman for the Dever forces, was as follows:

"I stand by my statement of Saturday. William E. Dever will be elected mayor by a plurality which will not be less than 125,000, and is more likely to reach 175,000."

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, in charge of Dever women's activities, estimated that Dever will receive 185,000 women's votes and that there will be only 115,000 women's votes cast for Lueder and Cunnes, the Socialists.

It's Lueder, Galpin Says.

"The best estimate we can make during the rapid changes which have come in the last week," said Horace K. Galpin, Republican chairman, "is that Lueder will win by a figure somewhere between 40,000 and 75,000."

"But neither I nor any other man can estimate accurately how the vote is going to go under the present conditions."

EVANSTON EAST AND WEST SIDES BATTLE TO RULE

But North Siders May Decide Majority.

Evanston's mayoralty battle holds the spotlight in today's list of suburban elections. Village presidents, trustees, clerks, and treasurers will be elected in most of Chicago's suburbs.

In Evanston it is the "east side," considered high brows because of the many wealthy residents near the lake, against the "west side," where the more lowly Evanstonians reside. For the first time in years there is a chance that a west side man will be elected mayor, political dopesters say.

Complexion of Race Changes.
Major H. P. Persons, who has served four terms of two years each, is again the hope of the east sides. Henry G. Williams, justice of the peace and garage owner, is the west side candidate. He has been using airplanes to distribute doggers urging the proletariat to shake off Mayor Persons' rule.

Until last Saturday Persons was believed to have a primrose path to reelection, as the west side vote was split between Williams and another garage owner, Raymond Metz. On Saturday Metz withdrew from the race and the Williams followers are now claiming that the west side vote is solidified behind Williams.

North Expected to Decide.

Both candidates have made extraordinary efforts to get the vote of the north section of Evanston. It is expected that the vote there will decide the race.

In Winnetka the race for the presidency of the village board is between Edward F. Zipp, incumbent, and Malcolm McKechar.

In Winnetka the present board president, John S. Miller Jr., is unopposed for reelection.

Frederick Penfield, village president of Glenco, refused to be a candidate and Merle Waltz is running unopposed.

In Oak Park Willis McFetridge, now deceased, was a member of the village board is up for reelection.

STORIES TOLD BY POTHIER CLOUD CRONKHITE CASE

First Implicates, Second Clears Rosenbluth.

BY DONALD EWING.

CHAPTER III.

(Copyright: 1923 by The Chicago Tribune.)
The story that Capt. Sarge Roland Pothier, who murdered Maj. Alexander P. Cronkhite in the woods of the Camp Lewis, Wash., reservation at the instigation of Capt. Robert Rosenbluth, and his retraction to newspapermen later in which he exonerated Rosenbluth, have become the most misunderstood angles in the mystery shooting because of three facts which heretofore have not become known.

The three facts are:

1. Pothier, who charges that he implicated Rosenbluth because he was mentally upset from "third degree" methods of department of justice agents, did not actually sign his statements until two days after he made them. Thus, he had ample time to reconsider. The agents who obtained the admissions were not present when he signed them.

2. Pothier had been hit by a freight train shortly before confessing, receiving a skull injury over the left ear, which kept him in a hospital two weeks and which now is claimed by his friends to have deranged his mind.

3. Pothier, in his statement, retracted only the instigation of Rosenbluth.

Today, two years after the confession and after several months in a penitentiary with ample chance to consider, he still says he shot Cronkhite, but that it was accidental.

The General's Charge.

When Gen. Cronkhite returned from France in 1919, he immediately began inspecting war department records of his son's death. His inspection caused him to charge:

1. That there was no authenticated record of any investigation, military or civil, on file.

2. There was no record of an inquest, required both by military and civil law.

3. There was no authenticated record of the extensive autopsy performed on Maj. Cronkhite at the time of his death.

4. There was an unauthenticated record of any autopsy which was soon proved to be false and misleading.

5. There were indications that vital records and exhibits had been destroyed.

Secretary of War Weeks recently conducted an investigation into the records and reported that they were "all right, so far as he goes."

Sister Put in Charge.

When Gen. Cronkhite turned these facts over to the department of justice, together with opinions of experts who performed the autopsy, which will be discussed later, the department, then under A. Mitchell Palmer, turned the case over to John Suter, assistant chief of the bureau of investigation. Under him Phillips Harris, Thomas Callahan, James Lee, and other agents worked.

Convinced the shooting was a murder, they located Pothier at Providence R. I., and on March 19, 1921, he made his first statement to them.

In this statement he said he killed Cronkhite, but did it accidentally while unloading his own gun after shooting at a target with the major. He made two more statements that he did not Cronkhite accidentally, but Agents Lee and Callahan then pointed out that it was impossible for his gun to have been discharged in the manner he described. So, on March 22, Pothier charged that he killed Cronkhite under Rosenbluth's instructions. Lee and Callahan then called in Peter Cannon, United States attorney at Providence, who is known as a square official, and Cannon questioned Pothier for several hours. His statement was taken down.

Promised Full Protection.

Pothier first said that four or five days after the shooting he had come to him and asked if he was a good shot, adding that he had something for him to do and that he need only a fair shot to do it. A night or two later, Pothier said, Rosenbluth again came to him and told him to go on to the other night. I said you're a good shot, then said, "I want to get Maj. Cronkhite." When I asked him what he meant he said, "I want you to kill him." When I asked why he said, "Because we want to get him out of the way" and when I asked who he meant by "we" he said, "Never mind; you'll find out."

Pothier then says that Rosenbluth told him he would be fully protected and that the best lawyers would be gotten for him if he got in trouble.

After relating further discussions, Pothier quotes Rosenbluth as quietly: "We came to a place where the major and the captain went in front of the company and I was about six paces behind them and fifty yards ahead of the column. Capt. Rosenbluth dropped back and told me to halt the column, which I did. In the meantime, I was walking until we arrived at this little open space behind the bushes and stood there with his back to me."

Told to "Go Get Him."

"I met Capt. Rosenbluth as I walked up the trail and he told me to go get him now. I joined the major in the open space and when about two feet behind him I put three shells in my gun. I fired once in the open field, and as the major turned around I fired a second, hitting him in the right breast."

About this time I heard another shot behind me and Capt. Rosenbluth came running up and picked up the major and dragged his body so that it lay parallel with the road. He then drew his revolver and fired through a can on the ground and said, "Do not forget about this, if any questions are asked you keep still and let me do the talking," and Capt. Rosenbluth then looked at the major and said, "I think he is dead." He then called for Dr. Saunders. This was about ten minutes after the major was shot.

Questioned repeatedly as to motive, Pothier insisted he had received nothing for the shooting, saying that Rosenbluth had a "strange influence over me." Another time he said "orders are orders, and I did what I was ordered."

The next day, Oct. 23, 1921, Rosenbluth was in New York. Again the case seemed ended, this time with murder as the solution.

But shortly afterward Pothier told a newspaper reporter that Rosenbluth had nothing to do with the shooting. He said he had been a victim of "third degree"; not physical mistreatment. Give him "benefit information now in your possession. Suggest to him issues, warrants both parties and other extradition proceedings."

When Rosenbluth was arrested he made several statements contradictory to previous utterances of his. He also told the agents he had to see Herbert Hoover and Louis Strauss and that he expected a courier from Vladivostok that day.

Find Secret Code.

In searching him the agents found a secret code with numerous phrases dealing with establishment of trade relations with foreign countries. Rosenbluth had been retained from Russia. "Russia of spy work, secret negotiations with the soviet and bolsheviks" spread rapidly.

And then, suddenly, the department of justice dropped the case—dropped it seven days after Rosenbluth's arrest—for March 23, 1921, Attorney General Daugherty, just in office, decided the case should handle the case and wired U. S. Attorney Saunders at Seattle.

The story of the secret code, what it was, who it was from, the courier brought back from Vladivostok and the reasons for the conference between Hoover, Rosenbluth and Strauss will be taken up in tomorrow's installment.

The Richardson-Method of Linoleum Laying overcomes all objections to all other methods

Here are some reasons why:

- 1—When linoleum is laid by the Richardson-Method, an interlining of heavy rag felt is first glued to the floor. This underlay of felt absorbs all lateral expansion and contraction of the wood floor.
- 2—The linoleum at once becomes a smooth, waterproof, germ-proof, resilient floor which can be easily cleaned and is free from cracks.
- 3—The Richardson-Method eliminates damage from water which is not possible when linoleum is tacked.
- 4—The rag felt lining cushions the linoleum, making it resilient and thereby lengthening its life.
- 5—The work is completed in one operation, making it unnecessary for the workmen to return and disturb the room.
- 6—if it becomes necessary to remove the linoleum, it may be taken up without damage to either linoleum or the floor, making it the only logical method for offices and apartments, where the tenants are moving from time to time.
- 7—The linoleum is absolutely guaranteed against bulging, stretching or cracking.
- 8—A time-tested method, for over 13 years, which eliminates all of the difficulties experienced with other methods of laying, thereby proving that the Richardson-Method is the only practical, permanent way to lay linoleum.
- 9—Recommended by big business men. May we show you the letters some of these men have written to us?

THE PENALTY OF SUCCESS

SUES TO FREE BRIDE "STOLEN BY HER PARENTS"

Charges They're Keeping
Her Imprisoned.

Judicial interference with the "will of God," which is alleged, keeps his 18 year old bride of a week a prisoner in her parents' home, was sought yesterday by John H. Dudley a plumber, living at 4455 Berkeley avenue in a hearing of his petition for a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Joseph Sabath.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter son, 7718 South Laflin street, were ordered to appear before the jurist on Wednesday. Dudley charged that through their machinations his young wife has been virtually imprisoned in her parents' home.

To Be a Missionary.

"It's all a mistake. Helen doesn't want to go back," declared Mrs. Peter son last night. "She came home of her own accord. The marriage was not the will of God. Helen is going to get rid of him and go away as a foreign missionary."

Dudley told the court that his bride returned to her parents' home for an hour's visit on March 30. Once there, Dudley continued, the older Petersen barred her exit and have also refused to allow him to see or talk to her.

Says She Loves Him.

The couple were married at Crown Point on March 23.

"She loves me and I know she wants to come back to me," declared Dudley. "And I love her and I'll have her despite her parents."

'MISS S. L.' WANTS JURY TRIAL FOR FARRAR DIVORCE

Demands Chance "to Clear Her Name."

New York, April 2.—[Special.]—Justice O'Malley of the Supreme court listened this afternoon to pleas by counsel for Stella Larrimore, co-respondent in the divorce suit of Geraldine Farrar Tellegen against Lou Tellegen, for a jury trial of the divorce suit, in order to clear Miss Larrimore's name of the charges brought against her by the noted prima donna.

Louis H. Brodsky, counsel contend- ed that section 1149 of the civil practice act gave Miss Larrimore the absolute right to have the divorce suit tried by a jury. Mrs. Tellegen was not a principal, but only a co-respondent, and he therefore, asked the Supreme court to take the case out of the hands of the referee.

Referred To as "Miss S. L."

Miss Larrimore is the "Miss S. L." to whom detectives for Miss Farrar referred recently in testifying before Referee Mahoney to alleged attentions paid by Tellegen to an actress.

"Miss Larrimore, living with her mother at 730 Riverside drive, is a young girl who has led a clean live and here at the very threshold of success upon the stage as a member of Mr. Tellegen's company she is charged with which the public will no longer tolerate among women of the stage. We demand the right to have an opportunity to vindicate herself."

Judge Joseph Sabath.

Samuel Untermyer replied on behalf of the defense.

The case will be on at 10 o'clock to Monday. It would be glad to have Miss Larrimore appear and present any evidence she has, but we are opposed to letting her stop the trial."

MRS. MILNER NO. 2 ASSERTS EX-WIFE TRIED BLACKMAIL

Former Miss Capper Tells Story on Stand.

Edwin Milner's value as a husband apparently leaped from nothing, when Mrs. Helen Milner divorced him, to $10,000 when his subsequent engagement to Miss Harriett Capper, secretary-treasurer of Capper & Capper Co., haberdashers, was announced.

Attempts to blackmail her succeeded, however, and she got $10,000 in alimony of affections suit by the first wife, the former Miss Capper told the jury in Judge Hugo Pam's court yesterday. Milner, vice president of the Capper organization, was divorced in October, 1920, on grounds of cruelty, and married Miss Capper a year later.

Tells of $10,000 Demand.

"Soon after Mr. Milner was divorced I received a telephone call from his ex-wife at my office," the second wife testified. "I understand you are a haberdasher, Edwin," she said to me. "If you don't give me $10,000 in five days I will sue you for alienating his affections."

"O, it's one thing to file such a suit and quite a different one to win it," I replied.

"Well, now let's not waste any time," Mrs. Milner continued. "I want to go to the courthouse myself and sue to get set up. If you don't pay within five days, I'll see that your brothers do. If only to keep their names out of the papers." I just laughed at her," the witness said, "and hung up the telephone."

* Denies "Petting" Scenes.

The second Mrs. Milner denied outbursts of affection toward Milner before his divorce, and characterized her first wife as "cheek rubbing scoundrel." She said she had written letters to Milner from Florida, one of which, introduced into the record, read: "Dearest Ed—How I miss you, when I was back at the store, time drags so without you."

There was nothing wrong in the trifle all took to the Dells," declared Mrs. Milner. "Edwin's wife was with Mr. and Mrs. Gleason, and I, and myself drove there in my automobile. Hotel accommodations were limited. Mr. Gleason found a room in the K. C. hotel, where he slept. I slept with Mrs. Gleason in one bed and Mr. Milner and his wife in another, all in the one room at another hotel. We girls got undressed and put out the lights, and then Mr. Milner came to bed. He was up before the rest in the morning."

Never Threw Kisses.

"He never gave Edwin the alternative of giving up his wife or his son," continued Mrs. Milner. "Nor did his first wife ever plead with me to give him

MISS ETHEL APPLEGATE.

Jewelry, furs, and antiques valued at $7,000 were taken from the home of Miss Ethel Applegate, 600 Galt avenue, yesterday by a burglar who entered through a pantry window.

He is believed to be the same man who entered the homes of J. H. Norton, 3655 Pine Grove avenue, and James L. Hogan, 2620 Blaine place. From these homes he took jewelry, furs, and silverware valued at $3,000.

In order to gain entrance to the Applegate's apartment the burglar swung from a porch into an open window. Detectives Thorsham and Gill are investigating.

"O, it's one thing to file such a suit and quite a different one to win it," I replied.

"Well, now let's not waste any time," Mrs. Milner continued. "I want to go to the courthouse myself and sue to get set up. If you don't pay within five days, I'll see that your brothers do. If only to keep their names out of the papers." I just laughed at her," the witness said, "and hung up the telephone."

M. E. BOARD AGAIN ASSAILED IGNORING OF RUM RUNNERS

Washington, D. C., April 2.—[Special.]—The board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church is up in arms because the state department is doing nothing to help curb the rum fleets of the American coast, and thinks that the British would cooperate in curbing rum smuggling.

"There has been no cooperation. So far as we know."

Edith Day Bankrupt; Has $250 and Owes $15,545

New York, April 2.—[Special.]—

A few weeks ago the board urged the government to drive the rum fleet from the seas with U. S. destroyers.

"The scandalous assault upon American sovereignty by rum smugglers seems to be nobody's business," the board said today in a statement issued by Clarence True Wilson, its general secretary.

"Months ago the United States government proposed to the British government that police jurisdiction be extended to twelve miles from shore. The British government did not find anything objectionable, but voluntarily

it assured the United States government of cordial cooperation in curbing rum smuggling.

Refusing to set aside the will of William B. Ogden, wealthy Chicagoan, the judge of the County court at Miami, Fla., yesterday handed down an order dismissing the petition of the two children of the deceased.

Ogden died at Miami in 1921, leaving a will executed a few days before his death, which left $250,000 to Sally Hernden, William Ogden, his third wife, the chief beneficiary of an estate amounting to about $250,000. The son and daughter were left $500 each.

The children contend that the third

Mrs. Ogden used her influence over their father to keep him intoxicated and that he was in such a state when the will was drawn.

Joseph Harrington The Foremost Home Heating Engineer says this about Nokol

As Administrative Engineer during the war, Mr. Harrington had charge of Fuel Conservation in Illinois. He is one of the few real authorities on home heating in the United States. He says:

"My acquaintance with Nokol dates back over five years. In fact I owned almost the first machine on the market."

Nokol is not an experiment. It has demonstrated its entire success over a period of years. In all the time I have owned my present equipment it has never failed to operate, never been repaired, and never failed to keep the house within two degrees of the set temperature in all weather.

There are six essentials to any successful oil heater:

1. It must be quiet, simple and durable.
2. The oil must be thoroughly atomized.
3. The atomized oil must be thoroughly mixed with the proper amount of air before ignition.
4. The pressure at which the oil is delivered must be under absolute control.
5. The fire pot must be so designed that combustion is complete before there is contact with the boiler surface.
6. When no heat is required the heater should cease operating. It should operate only under the fixed conditions of maximum efficiency.

Nokol is successful because it fulfills all these conditions.

I expect to finish this heating season with a total fuel cost of about $170 for my 14-room house, which is far less than it cost with coal."

STRIKE OF 50,000 IN KRUPP PLANT IS THREATENED

Workers Demand French
Free Directors.

BERLIN, April 2.—The 50,000 workers employed at the huge Krupp plant at Essen will strike immediately unless the four directors arrested by the French following Saturday's tragedy when eleven persons were killed, are released, the aldermen of the town informed the French today. The French are said to be planning to court martial the directors this week.

All day yesterday and today French airplanes hovered over Essen, the foreign office reports. The pilots dropped pamphlets disclaiming responsibility for Saturday's happenings and saying that the resistance of the workers was inspired by the directors of the Krupp works. This the Germans stoutly deny.

Her Gruetzner, the expelled government president of the Dusseldorf area, which includes Essen, sent a strongly worded protest to Gen. Degoutte today, declaring that the responsibility for the event was entirely with the French.

ESSEN, April 2.—The number of deaths of workers shot by French soldiers at the Krupp factory here on Saturday was increased to eleven to-day. Two other workers in the Krupp hospital are in a precarious condition.

Prayers for the dead were offered up today by Mgr. Testa, papal envoy to the Ruhr.

A young German, becoming violent after an argument, was killed by a French soldier at Recklinghausen.

Over the surface today was calm throughout the Ruhr, thousands enjoying the beautiful Easter Monday set of doors.

Krupp officials are continuing to plan on one funeral for the dead workers, but they have not decided whether to hold it tomorrow or Wednesday. So far the French have not indicated whether they will interfere with the preparations for the vast ceremony in which the entire city will participate.

Expect New Peace Offer.

PARIS, April 2.—Secret information has been received here that the German government is preparing to broadcast over the world new projects for a solution of the reparations problem. The Germans will not address any particular government.

The plan is understood to include the old "committees of international financiers" and economists, which often have been rejected by the French, who, as the principal creditors of Germany, do not intend to leave the settlement of their accounts to a group of neutral experts who are chiefly interested in a resumption of their personal business in Germany.

400,000 School Children
Get Half Holiday Today

A half holiday will be granted Chicago school children and teachers today because of the election. As a half day's vacation is not sufficient distance from their schools, the board of education decided that in order to afford the teachers opportunity to vote, schools should close at noon. About 400,000 children and 11,000 teachers are affected.

SEEKS HEART BALM

POLICEMAN HURT IN AUTO CRASH 8 MONTHS AGO DIES

Injuries sustained more than eight months ago, when a police patrol in which he was riding collided with another automobile, caused the death yesterday of Patrolman Fred J. Wolaver, 63 years old. Wolaver, who lived at 6035 Eberhardt avenue, was formerly attached to the Fifteenth street station.

Albert Lipinski, 45 years old, living at 5343 Roscoe street, died yesterday after being struck by an automobile truck driven by Dominick Barducci, 3265 5th avenue. Barducci was not injured. He was declared that he was struck by an automobile at 18th and South Wabash avenue.

a Million at His Death

Whether Mrs. Ida Clossell Smith, pretty French war bride, must return to her native country, penniless as well as husbandless, or with $4,500 heart balm awarded her by a jury yesterday will be decided by Judge Joseph Sabath on next Saturday.

Motions to set aside the verdict were entered immediately after the jury, the second to try the case, found that the girl's mother-in-law, Mrs. Dora Morton, widow of Princeton, Ill., had caused Myron D. Smith, her son and former A. E. F. member, to desert his bride at a wedding.

In the previous trial, several months ago, a jury held that Smith's sister, Mrs. Helen Nelson of Oak Park, had been equally guilty with her mother and assessed the couple $7,500. This verdict was set aside because of error which crept into the hearing.

Smith, according to his wife's testimony, was a good boy, who shot a Red Cross nurse, discovered his condition, and nursed him back to health. As a result of the battlefield romance, they were married on July 15, 1919. Immediately after their arrival in America, a campaign of "artful contrivances designed to disgust Smith with his former bride," was launched by the soldier's relatives, Mrs. Smith charged. He left her in May, 1920.

ADMITS THEFT STORY WAS UNTRUE.

Confessing that he had invented his story of being robbed while under an anesthetic at a Chicago hospital, Dr. John T. Tofer, houseman at the Chicago General hospital, was fined $5 and costs yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct.

THE RELIGIOUS ISSUE IN THE ELECTION.

A TRIBUNE photographer in Ireland, taking pictures of the scenes of fighting between the Sinn Feiners and Black and Tans in the south and the religious feuds in the north, was being driven from one county to another. As the car was about to cross the line the driver saw some armed men in the road.

"They're going to stop us," he said. "and they'll want to know what your religion is. If it isn't what theirs is we're in trouble. They may shoot us."

"That's all right," said the photographer.

"Mine's whatever theirs is."

"I don't know what theirs is," said the driver.

The men stopped the car and asked the photographer what his religion was. He didn't want the risk of a guess and hedged. "I'm an American," he said. "We don't care anything about that," said the spokesman. "We want to know what your religion is."

"I haven't any," said the American.

"You're an atheist, are you?"

"Yes, I am an atheist."

"Pass, atheist."

He was safe with no religion, but he wouldn't have been safe on the wrong side of the Christian fence, whichever side happened to be the wrong one in that particular spot at that moment.

Man is the only congenitally mad animal. He is a slobber toothed tiger. If it had not been for the modifying influence of Christ upon the fiercest of the human breed, the whites of Europe, there probably would not even be any blacks, browns, yellows, or reds alive, or at least out of slavery, and even with the modifying influence of Christ the greater part of the black, brown, yellow, and red world is under white control, and the whites have spent 2,000 years of Christianity fighting and murdering each other to prove that one Christian creed of meekness, charity, and love is better than another.

Chicago voters are electing a mayor today. We have all hushed and deplored the issue which is governing a large mass of the voters. It has nothing to do with the administration of Chicago affairs and after the election will not be apparent in the city hall, no matter who wins.

The people know that other big business cannot be run on a principle of religious antagonism. The great packing business of Chicago was built up by Armour, Swift, Morris, Cudahy, etc. Morris was a Jew, Cudahy a Catholic, and Armour a Protestant. Morris did not say that no one but Jews could head departments in his plant, Cudahy that no one but Catholics could do so in his, and Armour or Swift that no one but Protestants could do so in theirs.

If the doctrine of boycott had been thoroughly applied no Protestant would buy of a Jewish or Catholic packer, no Catholic of a Protestant, and the Jewish packers, with only Jewish customers, would be out of the pork packing industry entirely.

People see that these are impossible absurdities, but when they take up the business in which they are all stockholders, the government of the city, they discard all common sense and return to the spirit which has made the Christian world a slaughterhouse in the name of him who told people to love one another.

We have had Protestant mayors and we have had Catholic mayors. Religion never has influenced them. Thompson, a Protestant, whose campaigns stirred up a lot of religious feeling, appointed a Catholic for chief of police, a Jew as corporation counsel, and Catholics in other important places.

Finne, a Catholic, appointed a cabinet nearly all Protestant. What do the people get so crazy about in their campaigns? The candidates they elect pay no attention to the thing which has sent them off their heads. It's known to be bad politics to pay any attention to it.

The human race has saber teeth. It loves to main, torture, and destroy. That is why universal and lasting peace is a delusion. The campaign now closed in Chicago reveals that people in the mass don't try to govern themselves by their minds but by their dislikes and prejudices.

Nevertheless in this department we'll continue to address the intelligent voter. It's great to kid ourselfs.

USE ANTI-PEEVISH PAPER TO KEEP HOME PEACE.

In this period of spring housecleaning and decoration an optimist of some imagination puts forth the theory that domestic difficulties can be properly attributed to ugly wall paper and distressing arrangement of artificial lights. There may be something in it. Some colors, or combinations of colors, seen too frequently or too persistently, unquestionably are irritating. Glaring lights have a similar effect.

Many persons will recall with shame some temporary and nervous explosions which they subsequently traced to headaches or irritations due largely to eyestrain. It is a subtle form of attack upon our nervous systems and self-control. Whether husband or wife is first to succumb makes no difference. The harsh word is spoken and the damage is done. The less they realize the cause the greater the harm, because the effect is cumulative.

Psychologists probably know more about it than paper hangers. They owe it to suffering humanity to impart their knowledge to interior decorators and illuminating engineers. Human beings have enough to upset them directly without having some brindle wall paper and a central overhead lighting arrangement trip them up when they're not responsible.

We can think up some good advertising lines for wall paper manufacturers or illuminating engineers who will put this idea of domestic tranquility and office efficiency into their work.

A PLAN TO DESTROY OUR TAX SOURCES.

Representative Frear of Wisconsin, a La Follette disciple in the house, has prepared a new tax program which he hopes to have enacted into law through the support of various radical elements in the next congress. In brief, his theory is that taxes must be increased rather than reduced, and that both this additional burden and part of the present burden upon smaller taxpayers should be transferred to the shoulders of the most prosperous individuals and businesses.

One of his proposals is the restoration of the war-time excess profits tax, with slight changes. The business of this country, and the workers who obtain wages and salaries from business, know what that would mean. It proved in operation and cannot fail to prove again, if restored, a burden so crushing as to ruin many businesses and throw innumerable persons out of employment, not only cutting off their incomes but removing such businesses and such employees as a source of any income to the government.

Another proposal is to tax stock dividends. It ignores the fact that stock dividends are not money, but paper, and if taxed would have to be hypothecated or sold, probably at a loss, to pay the tax. It ignores the fact that any cash which accrues to a stock owner through stock dividends is already taxed, thus, in effect, taxing the dividends, which in reality is the use of surplus or reserve funds for business expansion. Thus it would help to check the development of business which otherwise would add to the total of wealth in the nation and thereby improve sources of taxation.

Other proposals would provide for increase of the inheritance tax, and enactment of a gift tax. The inheritance tax idea, perhaps, is the most plausible of all the suggestions. But, overdone, it may be the most dangerous. That tax has gained support on the theory that great fortunes should be broken up; that such vast power as rests in the wealth of a Rockefeller, a Ford, or a Morgan should not be handed intact to an heir who has done nothing to earn it, and who might use it disastrously.

But Frear forgets, and those radicals who would support his plans forget or ignore, the fact that the present system of taxation already provides for the breaking up of such fortunes. State and federal inheritance taxes already take more than a third of such fortunes. The federal inheritance tax law takes 20 per cent of fortunes of more than $50,000,000, or 25 per cent of fortunes of more than $100,000,000. The Illinois state inheritance tax law takes 14 per cent of fortunes in excess of $500,000. In addition, the federal income tax takes approximately half the income from the great fortunes, which, in effect, is equal to confiscating half the property. Thus, in effect, we find half of the great fortunes taken by the income tax, and one-third of the remainder subject to seizure for inheritance tax, or a total of five-sixths of such fortunes already subject to complete absorption by governmental agencies.

That already provides for the breaking up of great fortunes with a vengeance. It is obvious that any additional taxes which Representative Frear may seek must be directed at the remaining one-sixth of each great fortune which now escapes. Such a program would destroy the goose which lays the golden eggs. First it would destroy the incentive for great productive enterprise, because the more profitable a man makes his business the more he would be penalized. Later it would destroy the business itself.

Take, for example, a hypothetical case of a man whose father has built up a $100,000,000 business. Half the income of that business goes to the government. The founder and father dies. State and federal taxes, as they exist today, not as Representative Frear plans to "improve" them, impose a debt of 25 per cent on that $100,000,000. The heir must sell the business or mortgage it to pay this $25,000,000 inheritance tax. Assume he mortgages it for one-third its value. Five years later he dies. The business goes to his heirs. They must pay one-third its value in inheritance tax. They must put up a mortgage of more than $20,000,000 to pay their inheritance tax. The business is mortgaged to 60 per cent of its value. The next short of a miracle can save it from collapse. With its demise thousands of persons are thrown out of work, probably some industrial centers, banks and innumerable small business collapse, and the government is left to pluck feathers from a dead goose instead of taking golden eggs from its nest.

That is the end to which Frear and his associates are working. It means the collapse of our entire economic system if carried to the lengths they favor. The same part of this country's population must understand the issue and organize to protect, not only their personal interests, but the institutions and future of this country.

Editorial of the Day

TRIBUNE'S ATTACK.

[Memphis News-Schmitz.]

With characteristic venom THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE attacks Representative Upshaw of Georgia for insistence upon the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. THE TRIBUNE says Representative Upshaw is inconsistent in urging the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment while he is the beneficiary of the violation of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments.

The TRIBUNE has ascertained that the Negro population in Representative Upshaw's district is larger than the white population, and therefore the five counties of the Fifth congressional district of Georgia should be represented by a Negro.

The fourteenth and fifteenth amendments were primarily intended to confer the ballot upon the Negro and deny Confederate veterans the right to hold office. Congress speedily removed the disability of Confederate veterans, but the right to vote has never been denied by any state since the ratification of the fifteenth amendment. Some states have tests to which the voter is subjected, but these tests apply to all alike.

We fail to get the drift of THE TRIBUNE's argument. It would seem to mean that it would welcome a return of the reconstruction period and the open saloon. This would indeed be a great country if the opinion should prevail that ignorance and illiteracy should be the test of desirability for public office, and that the open saloon is a boon to humanity.

HAYS RESCUES CHAPLIN'S FILM FROM CENSORS

Pennsylvanians Tried to Trim "The Pilgrim."

Motion picture producers and the state board of censors of Pennsylvania have been engaged in a contest for weeks involving the question of what is proper for the public to see. The principal battle was over "The Pilgrim," Charlie Chaplin's latest release. The producers claim the censors "censored" the film and that only the intervention of Will Hays won the restoration of enough of the scenes to make any showing of the picture possible. In order to present an unbiased account of what happened, The Tribune's eastern picture reviewer went to Philadelphia to investigate. His report follows:

BY PAUL W. GALLICO.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 2.—[Special—]Philadelphia had their first view of Charlie Chaplin's latest four-reel picture, "The Pilgrim," last night. It was announced that the Pennsylvania state board of censors had approved the picture.

There were only two changes that we could detect. The episode of the pilgrim, the large deacon, and the bottle of whisky was missing.

In this Chaplin and the guiding deacon are on their way to church. The deacon pauses a moment to tie his shoe lace. His coat falls away, revealing a slip between his coat and lip.

Chaplin deftly transfers it to his own coat tails. Then comes a small boy eating a banana, a dropped peel and a deplorable accident. Chaplin and the deacon hit the ground simultaneously. A dark stain spreads. The deacon and Chaplin both try to look as if nothing had happened. It is most amusing.

All this, as has been noted, is out. Defecting has preserved the continuity, and if you didn't know that it had been removed, you would not miss it.

Later there is a short elimination in the holdup scene in the saloon. The film has been cut so that, although the bandits rush in, they do not shoot.

We also seemed to miss that part of the church service where Chaplin weights the collection boxes and finds one side of the house delinquent in contributions.

What then, was all the excitement at the ruining of "The Pilgrim" by the Pennsylvania state censors? It is very mysterious. Harry L. Knapp, chairman of the board, won't tell.

ATTENSHIPS IN AMERICA, City, Mich., March 27.—I have with much interest your editorial on the Red Revolution in Russia. The Plan of the Red Revolution regarding the evidence given by the Bolsheviks now on trial, attack by La Follette and his stand on the Standard Oil company, and the other citizens will be interested in the news of La Follette and Roosevelt's of the Bolsheviks in America to have overlooked Brookhart stated, but they may appreciate more fully later and give them.

Report of La Follette's Senate speech I did not see any commendable or unusual efficiency in the manner of the Standard Oil company's which enabled them to provide stockholders a satisfactory division of their investment and at the same time to provide the citizens with products at a price far below that obtainable anywhere else in the country.

Confrontation of unusual business sense to be sufficient cause for such pseudo statesmen.

Not see any report of a vigorous by those champions of the citizens the consignment of the citizens to the pork barrel, and the last consignment did not seem to be any started to prevent the waste of money for political purposes. To provide for the defense of money would be sheer waste, and the Bolsheviks might remove the congressmen from their seats.

Report of the Standard Oil company, the railroads, the packers, the steel company, or any other organization which demonstrates unusual enterprise and ability.

As of their service in providing commodities to the public and to millions of our citizens, the quality of the service we expect in our congressmen.

Constructive statesmanship effort the assistance to the farmers; are provided whereby they may their loans.

Part of the railway property is located in order that they may earn a dividend on the remaining property. It is to be sold so that the farmer and manufacturer shall have to pay freight bills in shipping, in competition with the shipping of other countries. We have a few statesmen of sufficient ability to take care of their interests.

ENGAGED

CATHLEEN VANDERBILT.

H. Hays in New York, it was the intention of an emissary of the movie star that made it possible for "The Pilgrim" to go on in Philadelphia in its present shape.

Knapp Says He's Mystified.

Chairman Knapp, who receives $3,600 a year for his services, is also the dramatic editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer. At first he said he had no idea how the story that "The Pilgrim" had been censored came into being.

"I am mystified," he said, "apologizing and stating that he had no intention of lampooning a minister when he made the picture."

We were interested enough to see what the rumored eliminations which were first proposed and to which the producers objected, were. We found that the eliminations "had been requested" without any explanation of the picture. All scenes in which Chaplin and the deacon were "mock picus" were ordered out. The arrival of Chaplin in the small town was eliminated.

Would Have Ruined Film.

The sequence of the poor, ignorant, and unlettered minister attempting to preserve his dignity by delivering what he imagined to be a thrilling sermon on David and Goliath would have gone. This would have settled the first part of the picture.

Later on scenes in the home of the woman with whom the minister is boarded, a long course of sequence where the crooked minister tries to robe the deacon and frustrates him, were requested out.

Chairman Knapp partly solved the mystery.

"It may have been the white sheet," he said, "which of course is entirely unofficial."

The white sheet, it may be explained, is the first news sent the exchange upon the viewing of the picture by the censors. It contains everything in the way of eliminations which occurred to the reviewers in the projection room.

Mr. Knapp said that the white sheet had been stamped "unofficial." It is merely sent to the manager of the exchange," he said.

The Inevitable Protest.

"And then what happens?" "He comes over and argues."

The sequence that upon the arrival of the protestant the eliminations are gone over one by one. As one elimination is made the necessity for some that follow disappears. In other words, the blanket elimination or scenes where Chaplin appeared in minister's garb would have made all other cuts superfluous.

Ditto the picture.

The final decision is presented to the owner of the picture on a green sheet and the state board is through with the picture.

And so it was through this white sheet that the story got abroad. The picture exchange, instead of coming in to argue, sent it to New York.

Nevertheless, this white sheet represented what the Pennsylvania board meant to do. Its authors were Mrs. Niver, who owns a small newspaper in the western part of Philadelphia and who receives $3,000 a year for her work of cutting $500,000 in pictures and reading the reviews of the movies.

Mrs. Niver said: "The 'Pilgrim' struck her as the worst picture Chaplin ever made. She could remember none of the eliminations requested. There had been some, but they had not spoiled the continuity. This, of course, was not final. The picture was then shown to a board of invited ministers and approved with small cuts."

A good deal still remains unexplained. The only reason Mrs. Niver could give for the calling in of the clergy to review the picture was that the state board had protests from ministers all over the state.

According to Chairman Knapp, there was no cause for the Hays office to interfere, nor did they accomplish anything.

And from the Hays office one hears that they were largely instrumental in the salvation of the film.

KIRSCH MURDER BAFFLES THOSE SEEKING MOTIVE

Deputy Sheriff Killed in Holdup, Crowe's Theory.

Officials yesterday differed in the theory of the motive behind the murder of Deputy Sheriff Theodore Kirsch, shot and killed Saturday night in his cigar store, 613 N. Independence, boulevard.

Both the police, all vice presidents of the Merchants Loan and Trust company and associated with Mr. Hubert for many years, were H. G. P. Deans, F. W. Thompson, C. B. Estes, John E. Blunt Jr., Leon L. Loehr and Frank G. Nelson. In addition to the honorary pallbearers a committee from the Iroquois club, of which Mr. Hubert was a life member, attended the service, headed by Judge William E. Devine.

State's Attorney Crowe, personal friend and employer of Kirsch, maintained his belief that the murder was the result of an attempted holdup. Capt. James Gleason, of the police department, held the killer to be Chief of Detectives Michael Hughes, however, said he believed the shot was fired by an enemy who deliberately killed Kirsch for reasons yet unknown.

Not a Gambling Fund.

Gambling, as a motive, was discredited by the various agencies seeking to solve the murder mystery. Capt. Gleason said he never had a complaint of any kind of gambling at Kirsch's cigar store. A canvas of residents of the business men of the neighborhood showed that the place was well conducted.

There was only one table in the rest room and no basement. It was admitted that occasionally there were small friendly card games in the room, but never for large stakes. There was no room dice permitted.

Kirsch in his day was of way was a wealthy man. He had been in business for fifteen years, his being the only cigar store in the vicinity. In his younger days he was an employee of Garfield park. He was employed in the office of the clerk of the Municipal court under Homer Galpin.

Favored by Crowe.

When State's Attorney Crowe was elected a judge of the circuit court he had Kirsch appointed his personal bailiff. When he became prosecutor he had Kirsch assigned to his office in a clerical capacity. He never did any investigating for the prosecutor, it was stated yesterday.

"I have to be more careful than any other cigar store proprietor," Kirsch told a friend two years ago. "If there is any gambling in my place people would say it was because of 'protection.' I will not give any one a chance to do that."

At the moment a jury was impaneled, the family history was given and an adjournment to April 27 ordered. Assistant Coroner Adolph Hermann called attention to the similarity of the Kirsch murder and the killing of Joseph Lanus several months ago by holdup men who are now under sentence of death.

Analogy to Lanus Case.

"Those bandits went into Lanus' garage to rob him; they fled without taking his money after Lanus was shot. It was the intent of the murderer," the deputy coroner said. "Having fired the shot through fear, he was also afraid to wait to get the $300 or more that was available."

Reports of four men who had entered a garage near the cigar store asking for a telephone and of two others who had stopped at a filling station across the boulevard caused the police to hunt for them.

LA SALLE STREET WIDENING PLAN IS AGAIN DEFEATED

Aldermen Table Faherty Proposal Second Time.

Efforts of Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, to force a La Salle street widening project got another setback yesterday when the council committee on streets and alleys, for the second time within a week, placed the matter on file.

The result was that at Saturday's council meeting he produced an order directing that the streets and alleys committee be directed to take the rejected measure from the files and take it off.

The council, as is customary, referred the order to the committee for reconsideration and yesterday's action on the part of the committee was its answer to Mr. Faherty. The committee agreed the new plan that a majority of the property owners were in favor of the improvement, as it had received the first plus—silence.

The letter containing the plus was read and ordered "placed on file." This automatically closed the discussion. It is not considered likely that Mike will bring it up again before the new mayor takes office.

Falling from the nineteenth story of the Chicago Temple building, under construction at Clark and Washington streets, a brick crashed through the top of an automobile driven by Irving Simmons, 5750 Giddings street, and seriously injured Mrs. Stella Simmons, 27 years old. Her two sons received minor scratches.

MARCH BUILDING PERMITS BREAK CHICAGO RECORD

Biggest Boom in Re- cent Years Now On.

That Chicago is experiencing the greatest building boom in its history was again demonstrated yesterday when Building Commissioner Charles R. Bostrom made public the figures for building permits issued during the month of March.

These figures show that the value of the buildings to be constructed under the permits issued in March will exceed by nearly $4,000,000 the permits issued in February, and by $11,000,000 the permits issued in March, 1922.

This month, too, bids fair to be a record breaker, as one of the first permits issued yesterday was the new twenty-three story Palmer House, to cost $12,000,000.

Record Number of Homes.

The number of homes for which permits were issued in March nearly equals the total of January and February. The plans call for 3,835 new homes—3,259 flats and 588 residences—while the total for the two preceding months was 3,890.

The figures for last month, as compared to February, 1922, and March, 1922, follow:

| | | | | | |
|-------------------|--------------|--------------|--------------|------|-------|
| Feb. | 1922. | Feb. | 1923. | Mar. | 1923. |

No Peace with Thirteen Trades.

Unanimous approval of a policy of nonrecognition toward the thirteen building trades that repudiated their Landis award agreements was voted by the general committee of the citizens' committee to enforce the Landis award yesterday afternoon at a meeting in the Union League club.

After a brief recess the work accomplished during the year, Thomas E. Donnelley, president, discussed the progress made in insuring a continuation of the principles of the Landis award during the coming year.

"There will be no compromise on the part of the committee with the building trades in the so-called open shop trades," said Mr. Donnelley.

After the committee had taken its first action, Faherty charged the committee with "steam roller" tactics and said that he was going to "put through" the widening project before he went out of office or know the reason why.

The result was that at Saturday's council meeting he produced an order directing that the streets and alleys committee be directed to take the rejected measure from the files and bring it up again before the new mayor takes office.

DARING RAID ON ST. LOUIS MAIL TRUCK IS STAGED

Springfield Theft Laid to Same Outlaws.

St. Louis, Mo., April 2.—In one of the boldest robberies of years, five or six men armed with sawed off shot guns today held up a mail truck in the heart of the business section here, took a quantity of mail, including nine pouches of registered correspondence, locked the driver and a messenger in the cage of the truck, and escaped in their automobile.

Postoffice inspectors and local police at once discovered that the holdup was perpetrated by the same gang which yesterday morning staged the daring raid on the mail truck at the Chicago and Alton railway station in Springfield, Ill.

The truck was on its way from the St. Louis mail to a substation to the substation at the time of today's robbery.

The mail was for delivery to large business firms, including banks and brokerage houses. Chief Postoffice Inspector Reuter stated a hurried checkup showed there were 337 registered letters in the pouches.

Springfield Raid Studied.

Springfield, Ill., April 2.—[Special.]—The trail of the outlaw gang which staged Sunday morning's spectacular mail robbery has led directly to St. Louis, where it enters the underworld paths that lead to the haunts of "Big rats," according to postal inspectors and detectives working on the case.

Belief in this theory was greatly strengthened by news from St. Louis of the daring mail robbery there early today.

The capture of Bryan "Fresno" Shelton, believed to be a member of the notorious Egan gang of the Mount Carmel, has established a definite clew and opened the way to early arrests, detectives say.

Overlooked $50,000 Loot.

In a checkup today postal authorities say the bandits missed $50,000 in negotiable securities, which were in the registered mail. The entire loot is believed to be less than $1,000.

All the stolen pouches were addressed to Chicago and towns north of Chicago, and were being transferred to the Chicago and Alton from the B. & O. and the I. C.

U. S. SEALS PUT ON SEIZED BEER FOUND INTACT

Reports that the government seals placed on the Garden City brewery on Saturday by prohibition agents had been broken and a quantity of beer removed were denied yesterday. Investigation showed that the seals had not been tampered with.

The brewery was raided by prohibition agents on Saturday and three trucks on which 160 barrels of beer had been loaded were seized.

Greene wrote to his wife, and she said it was a pity he "could not do more of this thing." But Greene loved his wife, and he kept at the law because "poetry could not pay." He decided to return to his law office to brood. He became absent-minded and ill. He began to refer to himself as "a failure in life." Children were frightened when they met him. Neighbors called him "eccentric."

FAILURE AS POET DRIVES LAWYER TO END HIS LIFE

New York, April 2.—[United News]—Charles Tilford Greene, aged 40, attorney, shut himself up among his books in the Hotel Sagamore, Coney Island, and wrote:

"Here's to myself, a dreamer, who had an ambition to become a poet, and who turned out to be a — lawyer."

Two days later the hotel attaché broke into his room and found Greene's body tipped over a chair. There was a much thumbed Bible in his left hand. Unlighted gas jets were turned on. Police called it suicide.

No much was known of Charles Tilford Greene, except that he was a successful attorney in spite of himself. A large client called at his office in Wall street and thought him capable, if "queer."

Wrote Verses to Wife.

At home he wrote verses to his wife, and she said it was a pity he "could not do more of this thing." But Greene loved his wife, and he kept at the law because "poetry could not pay." ACTS TO REVOKE LICENSES SOLD BY W. H. H. MILLER

Orders were issued yesterday by A. M. Shelton, head of the department of regulation, an education, putting into motion the machinery which will revoke all medical and pharmacists' licenses illegally issued in the region of W. H. Miller, former small appointee to the directorship of the department, who was convicted recently of graft.

[TRIBUNE Photo]

Though no figures are not available, it is believed by officials of the department that more than 100 Illinois doctors, chiropractors, and druggists will lose their licenses. Two dozen druggists are on the list of those who were summoned to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked, and nearly a score of physicians. Other cases are still under investigation.

Hearings to Begin April 13.
Hearings on the first cases before the medical committee of the department will begin April 13 in the department's offices at 130 North Wells street.

Miller was convicted Jan. 28 before Judge Oscar Hebel of selling physicians' and pharmacists' licenses, raising $3,500 in the course of selling concessions in advance of state examinations. The chief witness was Dr. Samuel Foman, head of a quiz course, who testified he had paid Miller $3,500 for questions which he later used in his course. Dr. N. Odore Bourque, head of another course where doubtful candidates were prepared, was convicted with Miller.

Two of the first to be called April 13 are Dr. Nettie M. Hurd and Dr. Bononi A. Bullock, who have an office together at 27 East Monroe, street. According to Foman's testimony at the trial, he received $1,100 apiece from the two. This, he said, he turned over to Miller with the result that the two received the licenses for merely refused them.

Fair Out of City.

They were reported at their office to be out of town yesterday when Chief Inspector John W. Follmer attempted to serve them with the summons to appear. Personal service is not necessary, however, the inspector explained, and the cases of the two will be passed on regardless of their whereabouts.

The City of Victoria was said to be steaming at full speed toward Azores. It is a vessel of 3,500 tons. Thousand or radio fans heard distress messages from the burning vessel.

2 COLLECTORS

Daylight robbers yesterday obtained two pairs of diamonds worth $1,500 and $1,000, respectively. Paul C. Geutner, son of Oscar Geutner, a real estate agent of 40 North Dearborn street, was collecting rents in the vicinity of Seminary avenue and Dearborn street, when he was held up and robbed of $1,000.

William Fink, a collector for the Royal Blue stores, was emptying the cash register at 8725 West Division street when two men, armed with revolvers, entered. They got $1,500.

STRANGLER' AND GARDINI READY TO GO TO MAT

BY WALTER ECKERSALL
Ed "Strangler" Lewis, who started out to be a boxer but wound up as the heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, will defend his title against Renato Gardini, the Italian challenger, in the main event of the mat show to be conducted by the midwest A. C. L. at C. C. Hall tonight. The main bout will go on at 10 o'clock and the show will open at 8:15 o'clock.

RENATO GARDINI. Lewis and Gardini are not strangers to local followers of wrestling. Strangler has shown his way in contests before he won the title from Stanislao Zbyzko two years ago, and has defended it with success ever since. Gardini is a strong favorite with the wrestling public, and the Italians are certain to turn out in force to lend their moral support to their countryman.

Lewis' Headlock Deadly.

Although the Italian claims to have a defense for the headlock, the hold which has spelled defeat to many a champion, Charles Lee Lewis, takes his opponent with the look as soon as the man have been on the mat long enough to test each other's strength. Gardini may apply the double wristlock and short arm scissors to cripple the champion's arms, but close in, Lewis has the game figure.

In the past champions have been dethroned when least expected, and the same may happen to Lewis. Gardini is a worthy opponent and has earned the right to meet the champion by beating some of the leading heavyweights. He is a strong, aggressive and knows practically every dangerous hold known to the wrestling game. He will be outweighed fifteen or twenty pounds, but expects to offset this handicap with speed and cleverness.

Genini in Gardini's Corner.

It will be a finish match, best two in three falls. There will be a fifteen minute interval between the falls and Charles Loring will be the third man in the ring. The German-American flyweight champion, will open in Gardini's corner to give whatever aid possible.

Dick Davisourt and Jack Roller, Chicago heavyweights, will meet with a one hour time limit. Mazzeno Puglisi, an Italian light heavyweight, will open the show in a one-fall match against a local grappler.

Tickets are on sale at the usual places and indications point to a capacity crowd.

SETTING SUN IS VICTOR AT BOWIE, 15,000 SEE RACE

Baltimore, Md., April 2.—Special—Setting Sun, E. K. Bryson's consistent gelding, well ridden by Jockey Abel, accounted for the Inaugural Handicap, which had its first running at the Bowie track here today. The victory of the Wilson castoff was not popular, as there was some doubt about the placing at the finish. Frank Phinmont, which ran in the colors of the Audley farm stable, was second, with the favorite, Broomer, in the light blue and brown cap of Harry Payne Whitney, in third place. Despite the unsatisfactory placing of the first half, the race was a great race. The time was fast, 1:27 2/5.

Setting Sun paid the long price of $1.20 for a $2 ticket. The victor of the feature race today was acquired by Bryson last fall. The gelding was purchased from R. T. Wilson for a nominal sum.

FIRPO MAY SUB FOR FLOYD, JESS

New York, April 2.—Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight, has signed two contracts for his appearance in the charity boxing show at the Yankee stadium May 12.

One was for a fifteen round match with Jack McAliffe of Detroit, and the other an agreement to substitute for Jess Willard or Floyd Johnson, who was matched for fifteen rounds on the same card, in the event either was prevented from appearing.

Landis Bars Shorten from Playing with St. Paul

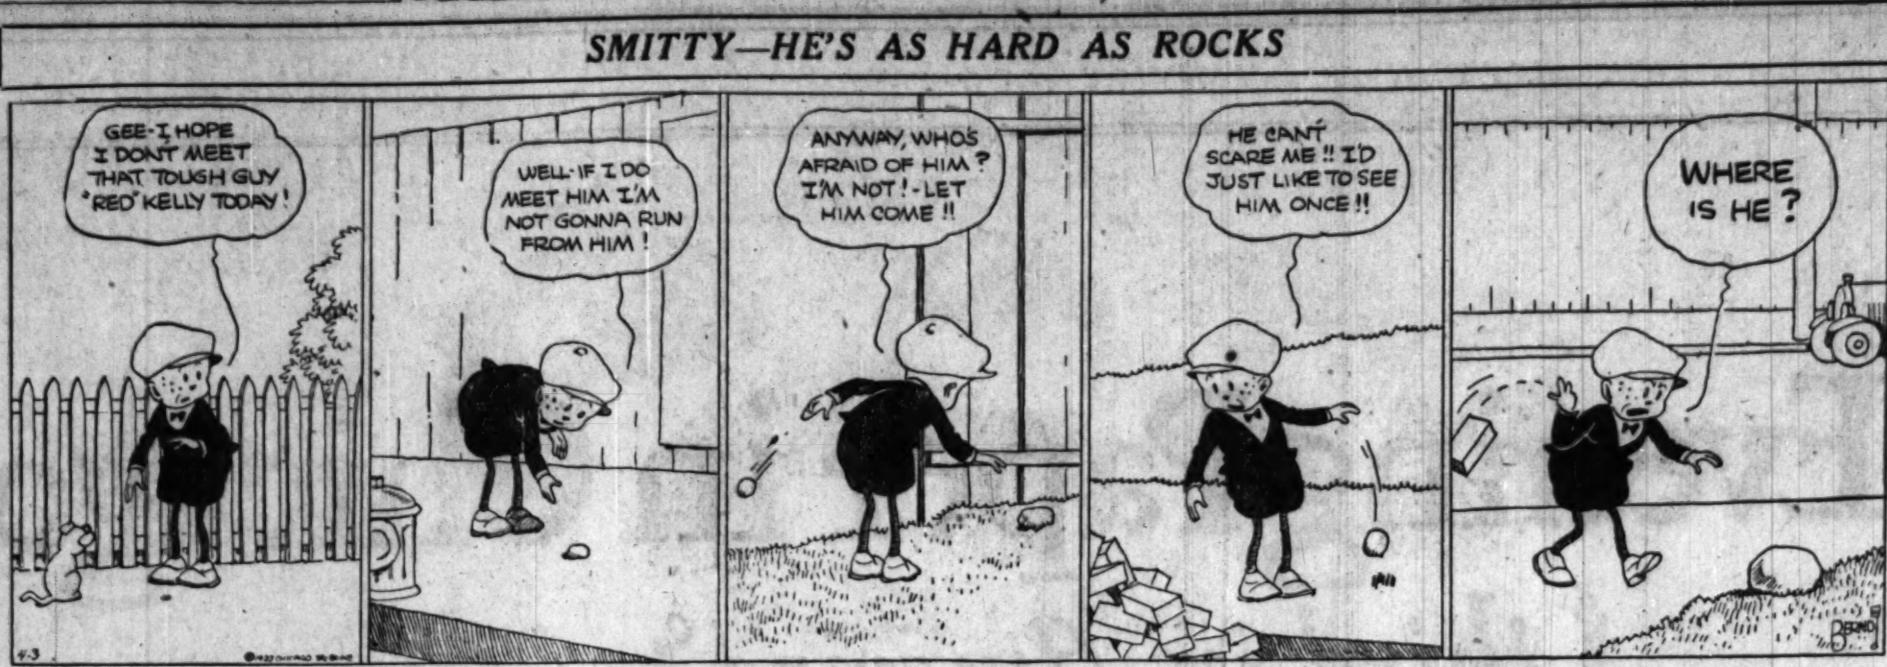

St. Paul, Minn., April 2.—Charles (Chuck) Shorten, outfielder, obtained from the Cincinnati Nationals by the St. Paul American League, in the Ruth-Benton deal, cannot play with the Saints, K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, has ruled, according to a dispatch tonight from a staff correspondent at the Fort Smith, Ark., training camp. Landis decided Shorten cannot play with St. Paul on account of the ruling prohibiting major league teams from sending players to clubs opposed to the draft. It is said the Reds will make up the Saints' loss with cash.

Dvorak Park Wins Title of West Parks Indoor League

Dvorak park indoor team won the championship of the west parks in the league, which closed last week. By the victory Dvorak retained the lead in points gained in sports during the year. Eckhart park is second in the point standing, with Pulaski park third.

Million Dollar Fight Purses in South America? No!

New York, April 2.—Talk of million dollar purses for fighters in South America is all bunk. I've been there and I know," Sailor Maxted, New York heavyweight, said on his return here yesterday.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

PLAYER REPRESENTATION.

In the framing of rules and regulations for government of the national game, it is a natural request.

Under present conditions, the player is forced to take what the magnates grant. In case of salary differences, he must accept what the club owner offers or retire from the profession. Of course, he may appeal to the High Commission in case of injustice, but that is not often the rule of the club owners.

This is not said in disregard of Judge Landis' accepted fairness and probity, but of the system.

In other occupations, when a man quits a job, he can work elsewhere. In baseball, he is practically blacklisted if he leaves without his employer's consent.

The picture, however, has a few rifts in the clouds. Wise counsel in the treatment of players has usually prevailed in the past. Abuses have been the exception rather than the rule.

Even in the case of salary differences, sensible opinion has operated to gain for players (at least those of proved ability) almost any raise within reason.

In theory, however, present conditions are unfair. Players seem to have reason in asking some sort of representation—not necessarily a formal one—of the so-called players union because unions have not been a success in baseball.

Spring Dreams.

Last night I dreamed old chance was back—him to outwit and lead the attack—Tucker was the ringleader. I saw Evers was barking in the umpire's cap. Clegg was doing stunts, and I saw Stellato laying down bunts.

Fields and bases were standing there. Fielders and catchers were at their posts as well as angels sing. I heard O'Day announce the battery, Brown King.

When the game was over and all was done, Cuba had beaten Giants, 2 to 1.

Saracens Go Abroad.

Some time ago, we expressed opinion that Brainerd Lodge directors to make the Saracens under contract, ultimately would allow the American open champion to compete in the British tourney. It has happened that on them play only class A or AA clubs. This will give the pitchers and batters all the exercise they need.

HOLLY OUT 3 WEEKS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 2.—Capt. Charles Hollister, shortstop of the Chicago Nationals, who is at his home here suffering from after effects of an attack of influenza, today stated it would be "a long time" before he felt strong enough to play ball.

Hollister's attending physician stated it would be three weeks before the player would be in full normal strength, and consequently he will not be in the opening game of the season with Pittsburgh.

The picture, however, has a few rifts in the clouds. Wise counsel in the treatment of players has usually prevailed in the past. Abuses have been the exception rather than the rule.

Even in the case of salary differences, sensible opinion has operated to gain for players (at least those of proved ability) almost any raise within reason.

In theory, however, present conditions are unfair. Players seem to have reason in asking some sort of representation—not necessarily a formal one—of the so-called players union because unions have not been a success in baseball.

After tomorrow's game the Cubs must spend another day in traveling in order to reach San Antonio. From then on they play only class A or AA clubs. This will give the pitchers and batters all the exercise they need.

Y'RE OFF IN CIFIC COAST
LEAGUE TODAY

Francisco, Cal., April 2.-Base-ballers were hopeful today that yesterday and today would not be the last of the Pacific league season tomorrow, opening games of the league this series of the Seattle and Salt Lake teams having been transferred to California; the Rockford, Ill., and University of Chicago bands to provide music.

Teams Bring Mascots.

A number of teams have brought their own drinking water along, and most of them are accompanied by mascots in the form of rathskellers, mongrels, and others.

Team workouts on Bartlett box today indicated that divers brands of play will be on display. Pittsburgh, Mass., is one of the favorites and is looked on as superior to Eatonton,

Wash., its opponent tonight. Du Pont
Manual Training High of Louisville,
Ky., nosed out the Lexington Blue
Devils, who won the national title last year, in the Kentucky tournament this season and will represent that state in the Midway tournament.

Tough Play for Local Boys.

Local boys will play on Tilden, Hyde Park, Morton, and New Trier, with the Stony Island crew the quartet. New Trier and Hyde Park will face their baptism of fitness today and both have drawn state champions.

New Trier takes the floor against Hume-Fogg of Nashville, Tennessee champions, at 4 p. m., and Hyde Park goes on at 5 p. m. against Hageman, New Mexico holders.

Morton's Suburban league champions will play Bangor, Me., best bet, and Tilden, city league ruler, will meet
Stillman, Okla., king of the oil country, at 4 and 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, respectively. Despite the reputation of its opponent, a victory for Tilden would not be surprising, as in Van-ky, Foster, and Barry the team has a fine record. The Pioneers, Pearlman and Weis can be depended upon to check most any opposition.

Don't Defend Title.

The tournament will be the greatest of its kind ever held, surpassing the previous four annual meets in both size and caliber of entry list.

Teams and coaches were entertained at University of Chicago students at banquet at the Midway last night, tournament rules and instructions being given at that time. Several team athletes spoke to the press.

Second Half Pairings.

Pairings for the second half of the first round tomorrow follow:

Northampton, Mass., vs Springfield, Utah;
Westport, Kansas City, vs. Birmingham, Alab.;

INDUSTRY PUTS STABILIZER ON BOOMS, LABOR

Even Flow of Prosperity
Is Goal Sought.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Booms and slumps are again doing a heavy weight turn on the industrial stage. With business and industry and commerce humming along on the upward swing, the workers are better off, the problem of moderating the next sag whenever it appears. Now that jobs are abundant and a scarcity of labor prevails in many basic lines from coast to coast, the experts are busy with plans to level off the peaks and valleys of employment.

Workers are employing with 1921 fresh enthusiasm, and apparently arriving to keep the present boom from hitting the clouds in a runaway balloon as in 1920. For months the big word in business and commerce has been to prevent sound development from developing into inflation of the 1920 type.

Keeping Up Efficiency.

Labor, for its part, now that jobs are easy to get, is being sought by many of its leaders not to fall off in efficiency as it did during the period of the great industrial bust, but did more than high wages themselves to blow labor costs to the point where the budget had to burst. One significant phase of the present revival to which little attention has been directed is that many large employers in basic lines report that so far not one per worker has slumped particularly.

Considerable attention was paid yesterday to the report of the special committee of the President's conference on unemployment. Of its ten recommendations two or three were especially discussed. These related to the collection of reservoirs of work to give employment in due times, to the question of cancellations of orders in business, which played an important part in the 1921 slump, and to the better handling of business in boom times to reduce periodic fluctuations.

How to Level Peaks.

The report urged that in boom periods, when prices are high, a slow down of construction by the government. This would not only assist the private owners would tend to level the peaks and valleys of employment.

Individual business men and corporations, it says, "should consider the business cycle far more than they do, in planning their construction work."

"There are difficulties, however, in the way of a widespread extension of this practice. In the first place, the tax situation even now tends to make companies naturally extravagant in maintenance charges in good times.

"Moreover, the business man whose business has developed to a point where the demand for his product is not in excess of his capacity to produce is always beset by the arguments of his sales organization desiring 100% plant capacity balanced with apparent selling capacity.

Demand for Materials.

"Holding back public works and private construction for periods of depression not only gives employment to large numbers of workers when it is most needed but creates a demand for raw materials for construction, which, in turn, stimulates other industries to offer employment. It maintains the buying power of those directly or indirectly employed; it creates a market for goods, and enables the workers to buy the products of other industries.

"If it were possible for a smaller number of workers to be employed on projects to be undertaken in periods when private industry is active, so that more work might be done during periods when private industry is slack, the government would not compete with private industry to so great an extent in times of prosperity, and thus would not be a factor in the inflation of money rates, wages of materials, and employment.

Need Extra Demand.

The report reiterates the opinion that the business cycle—from boom to slump and back to boom—is caused by conditions within business itself. The great need is for real information of conditions in industries of all sorts and of current and future trends so that business may exercise judgment based on facts rather than on guesses and intuition.

"We need," it says, "further development of special research into economic factors, into business currents, and into broad questions of economic method." For years past big industries have been establishing research bureaus dealing with trade statistics, industrial relations, etc., and the next step, it is urged, is to place these departments on the same broad basis as the physical science research laboratories.

WILD HEART
BY IZOLA FORRESTER

Dr. Bradley Yates, scientist and discoverer of an antitoxin against certain poisons, is found in a state of apparent aphasia on a street in New York by Capt. Pinckney Forbes, who is the most unusual private eye. Forbes takes the young scientist to his rooms and cares for him until he regains speech. Yates seeks solitude and goes to the Tennessee mountains, where he takes the name of Pickings. He lives alone, and as a mountaineer until he meets Carroll Brown, who comes to open the first school in the district. Having pretended illiteracy, he is compelled to attend. Forbes arrives unexpectedly with word of the success of Yates' discovery, and leaves next day, after a vain effort to persuade Yates to go back with him.

There he comes to the locality just before Yates' arrival, a small party of men ostensibly in search of the strangers, and also at the sheriff's curiosity about the parents of her love for Yates.

INSTALLMENT XX.

A WARNING TO BRADLEY.

Bradley rode over twice to Hulda Mews' cabin after his rebuff on Sunday morning. Chipmunk brought him the disturbing news after school on Monday that the teacher was sick.

"Not very sick, but she let us out early 'cause she had a headache and chills and things. Wish she'd take a good, long rest and shut up school. Do everybody good if she would."

Carroll had refused to see him, but Hulda had been benevolent in her aspect, like a presiding goddess. Smiling at him from the doorway, she said she was glad he had stopped school.

"There's other influences working for you, young man, and you'd best fit yourself to be worthy of them."

"But why won't she see me, Miss Mews?" he had begged.

"She's ailing, for one thing; took a chill in that storm and ain't herself yet. Then, again, maybe she don't want to see you till she's made up her mind for good and all. You know she wrote to her folks, don't you?"

"Did she? I'm afraid that doesn't signify anything," he said moodily. "I haven't even had a chance to ask her yet."

"You haven't? Well, for the land o' res, what was you saying to her all the time you had her up at the mountain? She hasn't the same."

She eyed him severely over the rims of her spectacles, but Bradley was too disturbed to notice. Why did Carroll persist in refusing to see him? Was she afraid of herself? Had she shrunk from the danger of that unknown trail where her hand would only find his own to guide him? Bradley had come to them both, the source of a love and attraction that needed no words. Bradley had known it.

Instead of working the rest of the day, he had saddled the mare and ridden miles over lonely mountain roads until nightfall. Tempted at times to throw the masquerade aside and win her as himself, then keen and resolved on seeing the thing through as he had begun. Besides, her very antagonism and repulsing of him only fired him with renewed determination. He knew the human temperament and organism. He would not win any woman through her reason. Irresistible as the recurrent seasons and forces of nature should be to her for him, based upon no restrictions of convention or consideration of social consequences of his success and achievements might bring her relief, but it should never strengthen their love.

Tuesday he let the chopping go. Skid was sensitively alive to something wrong in their daily routine. He whined eagerly, nosing with his paws outstretched at Bradley's feet. Chipmunk lashed happily around the cabin half the day, training the "possums, pitching a couple of huge spiders against each other in gladiatorial combat, teaching the turtle to walk a rope upside down, and studying the habits of the blue racer.

"I don't believe he's liked his new home and rolls away like a hopped-up dog when I speak to him," he mocked skeptically. "You know what Toly told me about a horned owl? Says if you kill a horned owl when the moon is full, and eat the heart raw, you can do magic. And I asked him if he'd ever do it, and he said, no, 'cause he liked his meat boiled. I told him I bet him two coonskins it was a lie, and he didn't bet. You don't believe in signs or ghosts or anything, do you?"

"Did you stop at Hulda's today?" Bradley inquired absently. "Was any better, the teacher, I mean?"

"None, not sick, but poorly, Aunt Huldy says. Maybe we'll have school Monday."

He rode over again, this time to find out just what her condition was.

"No, she won't take nothing," Hulda told him, pleasantly. "I fixed her ginger tea to stop her chills, and then she got a fever, so I bled up some tansy and give her that. Did you know she hurt herself that day in the woods, Pickings? Fell off her horse, she says, before she saw you."

Yes, he did remember, she had spoken of it, but only casually. It could not have been serious. No, Hulda allowed, not until he got on her other side. Bradley knew that worry breaks down nerve resistance, that she had been exposed in the storm and was not fighting against it. He had to buy grain for the mare at the store. There were none of the usual customers relaxing around the outside stoop. Mrs. Millicuddy herself waited on him, and watched him after he had carried the grain out and balanced it across the saddle. He was too much absorbed in his own thoughts to notice her air of suppressed importance.

"Left school, hev ye, Pickings? Miss Sanders was down talkin' to Dolf, and she's give him full authority to act as if he was fit."

"Suppose he's been trying to pass the examinations just the same, he can't do anything to me, can he?" He tightened the girth strap, slowly.

"Well, you know how it is, when people are looking to make trouble, they always find a peg to hang their hat on. I like you Pickings, always did, and I don't believe a word Dolf Bingham says."

"That's fine of you, Mrs. Millicuddy. Would you mind telling me what he's saying about me?"

"Say there something mighty curious and suspicious 'bout you coming up here from nowhere and telling nothing 'bout your folks. There was that man that come asking for you a week ago, and went straight back the next morning. Dolf says he thinks you're a fugitive."

"A fugitive?" Bradley's eyebrows contracted sharply. "What does he mean?"

"I forgot you don't know nuttin', you poor thing," Mrs. Millicuddy said compassionately. "It means you've run away from something."

"Well, I guess he's right about that; I did run away from something." He swung into the saddle with a laugh. "But it isn't what he thinks."

"When the sheriff gets to think about you, it's apt to turn out real. He made Gabe a deputy, did you know that?" Bradley's eyebrows contracted sharply. "What does he mean?"

"Well, I don't know. Gabe's home folks and you're a stranger. Not that I think there's a thing wrong with you, Pickings. Land alive, I'd trust you from here to Jericho. If you see Talithy dawdin' along, tell her to hurry up. I need her. She went over to the Soup Bowl with another telegram about the hunter's sick mother. He's terrible anxious about her."

The mare sprang up the road out of breath. He did not take her warning seriously. Perhaps he shared with Chipmunk a healthy contempt for Dolf's activities. He did not consider much what he thought. Every stranger in an isolated community was open to suspicion. It amused him to have the sheriff's official doubts center on himself when the men camping in the Soup Bowl never appeared to disturb his mind. He wondered whether possibly Van Dusen had not extended his payment of tribute beyond Pappy to where it would do the most good in a crisis. He had not the faintest idea of the morality of his neighbors. Men do not go away to a hidden place in the mountains and bury thousand bones without a definite and urgent reason. Possibly, he would have explained them for the sake of tranquility, and let the law take its course. Since the law had decided to run in a counter direction and stick to himself, he had decided to let it entangle itself in its own snare, while he helped Chipmunk land the guilty parties.

And while he prepared his solitary meal in the cabin, the ever spinning three succeeded in knotting four separate, straying ends in his particular corner of life, ends which to one outside the veil might appear inconsequential and unrelated, but to the gray clad ones, both ornamented and connected the eternal pattern.

In New York on Tuesday evening after a refreshing dinner at the Aerocraft, Captain Forbes strolled down Fifth avenue, turned the corner at Twenty-ninth street, and entered the quiet and secluded portals of the Martha Washington hotel, where he indulged at the desk for Miss Eleanor Van Dusen. He was informed that Miss Van Dusen was an invalid and had left explicit word that she never received callers. The captain was diplomatic and tactful; he quite appreciated Miss Van Dusen's seclusion, but would it not be possible for him to communicate with her by telephone? The operator at the switchboard agreed for him.

"A friend of her brother's from Tennessee, tell her."

He entered the designated booth expectantly. If his suspicions were verified, he would be in a position to give Bradley the strongest clew they had worked out. He spoke with easy assurance when the connection was made.

"Hello, Miss Van Dusen?"

The response was curt and in a voice like a querulous boy.

"Well, who is it?"

"Can I see you for a few minutes? I just came back from Tennessee."

"We felt the tension of irresolution and curiosity at the other end of the line. Almost in a whisper there was breathed back an answer.

"Anything wrong?" He hesitated just a fraction of time too long.

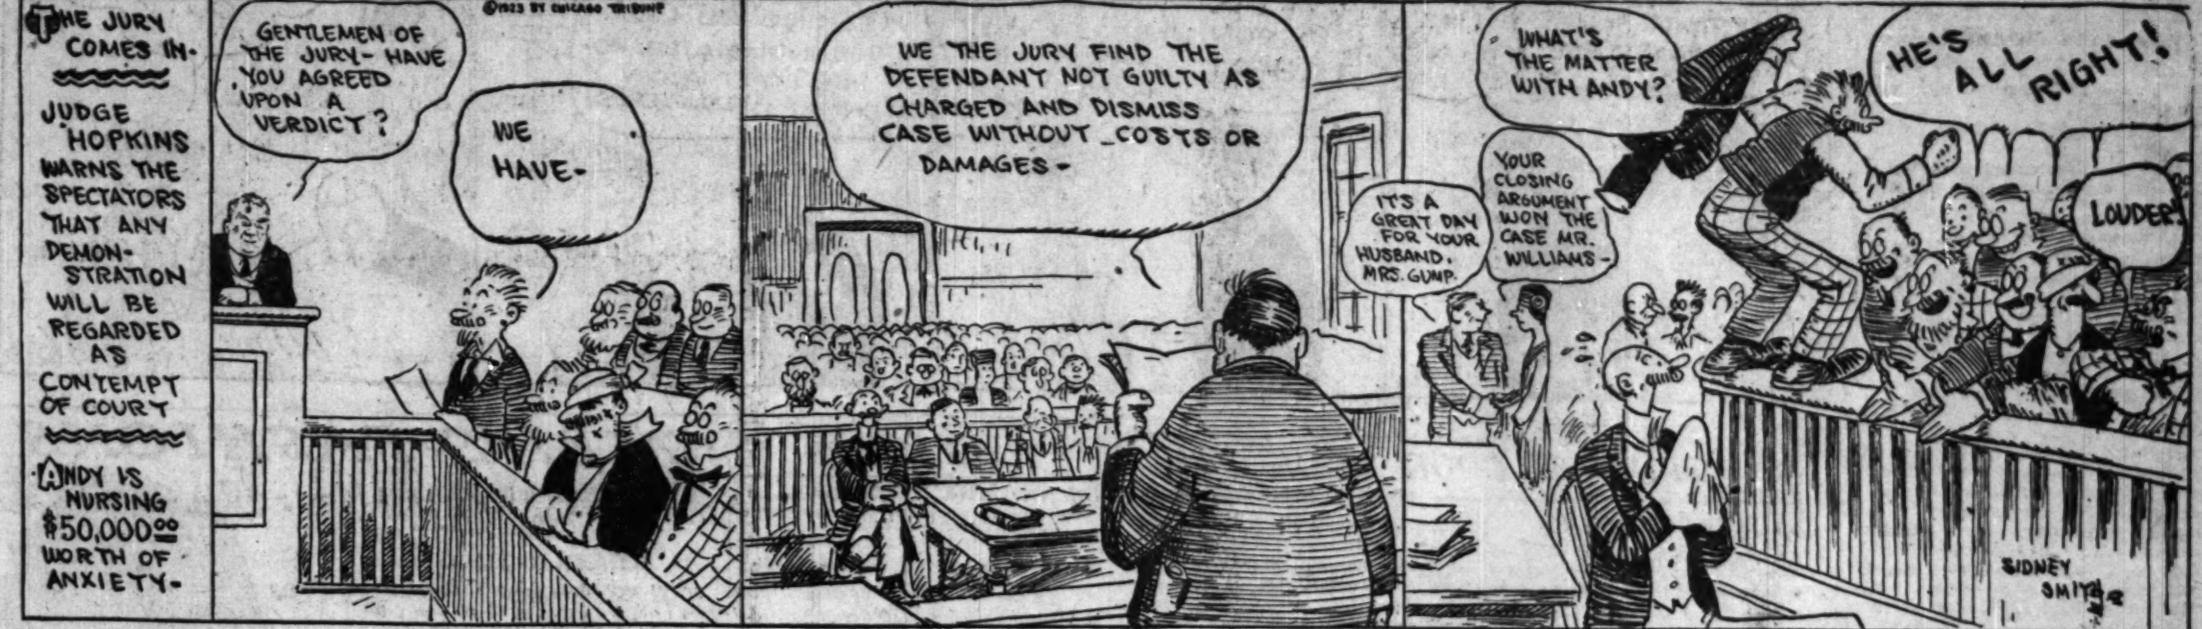

"Bob? Is that you?"

Good morning!

There are paintings and books and men and women and plays and photo plays that get a grip on your heartstrings, without themselves being of any apparently great importance in the world. They just have a rare, appealing pull that intrigues your mind and holds steadfast your affections.

"The Toll of the Sea" is a picture like this.

It has a "Madame Butterfly" motif and has been photographed in natural colors. "Technicolor," I believe the picture is really an exquisite.

Anna May Wong is one of the most finished actresses ever seen on the screen. Kenneth Harlan has a difficult role, but acquits himself well and the others in the cast are all good.

An important part of the program is the toll of the Spanish suite, on the other hand, is rather too intimate friendly with the audience for its best effect.

The Denishawn dancers mostly have auxiliary functions, but occasionally come to the front with a dance of good composition and technique.

"Soaring," in the first part, is one of the best.

Not So Good.

We were talking about pretty and bright girls. We were discussing a classmate who had failed in her exams, and Jane, who is exceedingly bright, said: "It isn't always pretty girls who are bright."

"Of course not!" I exclaimed. "Why, look at you!"

I meant it for a compliment, but it didn't meet my expectations. M. H.

Larger Every Minute.

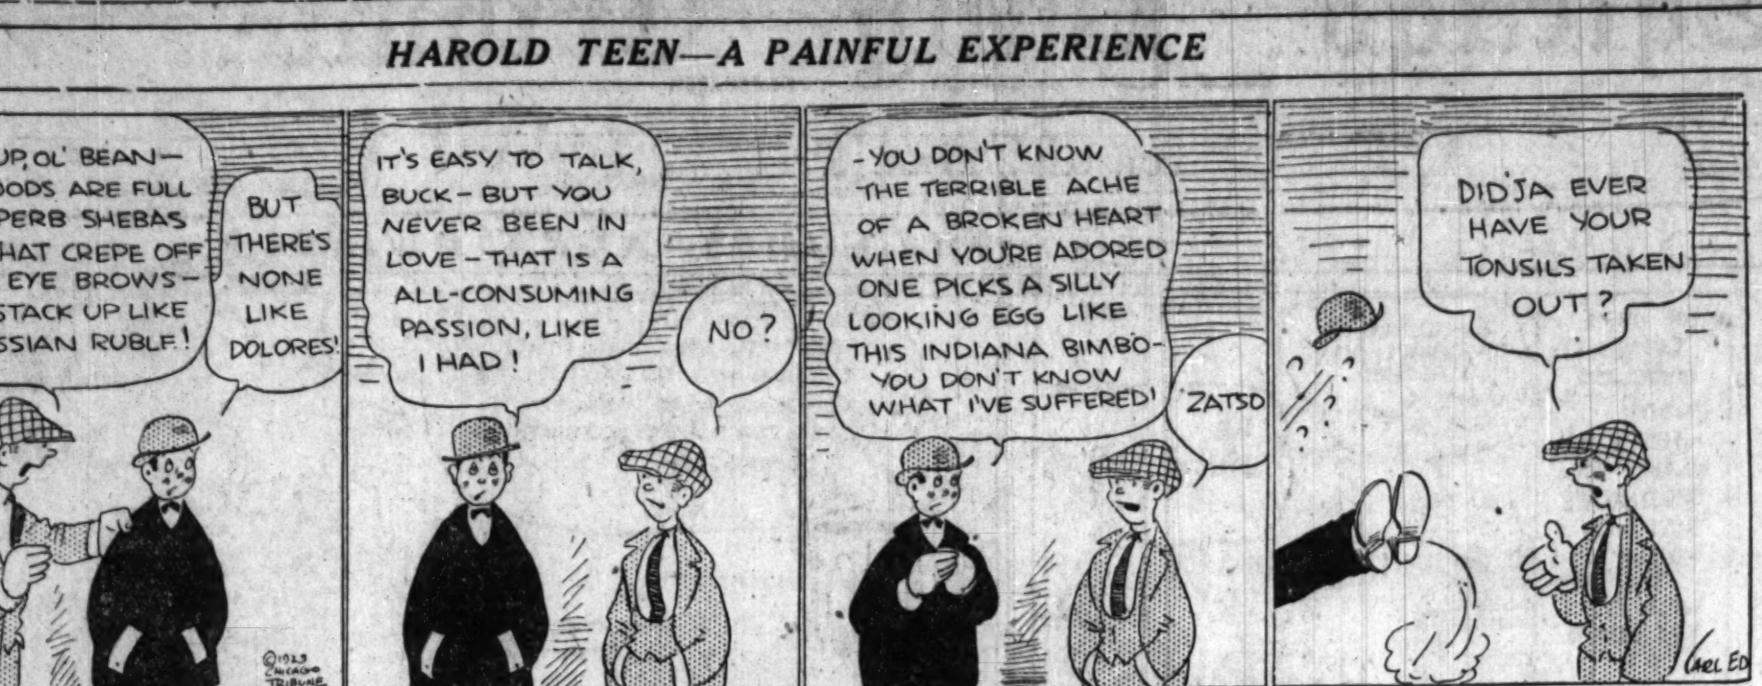

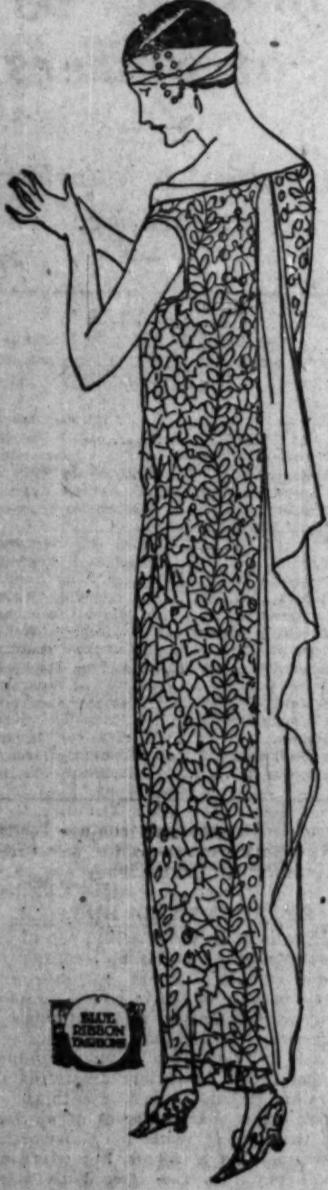

I was visiting in the home of a friend I had known for a number of years, but this was my first visit in her home, and I had never met her family. She had frequently spoken of her children, a son of 12 and daughter 8.

It was getting dusk when some one entered the sitting room where I was resting.

Thinking to be pleasant, I arose and said: "Well, this is Robert. I am so glad to meet you, for I have known your mother for a long time."

Imagining my feelings when I found it was her husband, and instead of looking like a 12 year old boy, as I had in my embarrassment he seemed to be getting larger and looking more important every minute. L. M. C.

Boiled Potatoes.

A correspondent has recently confessed to a liking for plain boiled potatoes. How to do it? So much depends upon the potato that it is doubtful if any general directions can be followed.

The untried, carefully handled, pedigree new potato of the present market at 15 cents a pound might come out fairly well with any sort of treatment, but most potatoes require the treatment that their age and type are.

And by the way, this is the secret to the best boiled potato: air of door and air cooler, of all the vegetables in particular. Note the new cabbage in the grocer's displays. Perhaps it has not been out more than a day in the many flavored and warm air, but it will show it is wilted.

Potatoes do not show the will as readily but they do breathe whatever air they must, and this changes their flavor. If you boil them, give them a different sort of treatment from those that are fresh. Cooling or refrigerating in a clean draft of air is far superior to cooling in a closed box, even if it is ventilated, as most are not, the food laboratories tell us, valuable mineral matter close to the skin of the potato, and therefore it is best to boil it in its jacket. Nevertheless, if you boil in a lot of water because hot water is so great a dissolver, a lot of that precious stuff will get dissolved and be lost.

Checked Shirt with Matching Collar.

BY A. T. GALlico.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—If you are tired of the plain white or the solid blue shirt, try a small neat check in a quiet color. Blue or tan is a favorite for a schoolboy's shirt.

Take a blue checked shirt with a dark blue suit or a deep red, or brown. Or wear the blue checked shirt with a gray suit, with a cravat of either dark blue or gray, or a neat combination of the two. Gray and blues together will be especially good this spring. The shirt illustrated, by the way, has a collar matching the shirt.

J. L. B.: I am sorry that at present I do not know of any such tie case.

Last summer I mentioned a traveling tie holder that was obtainable at a store in New York. But it was an imported novelty and may not be in stock there now. You might ask at some leather stores, and if I find such a case in my wanderings I shall put it into print.

R. A. G.: With the white vest and dinner jacket you may wear black buttons or white buttons, or you may wear white mother of pearl, or modest jeweled effects. A watch chain with black vest is permissible, but more men prefer the watch chain out of sight.

H. J. S.: I should prefer the black socks and oxfords. Yes, black socks and tan oxfords is a good combination when the tan oxfords fit in with the suit.

C. S.: Next Sunday there will be an article on spring suits which should answer your question.

"I can't," he wailed, "these are American soldiers."

May was visiting grandmother's home, and ventured into the unused parlor.

Much interested in a piece of statuary on the mantel, she picked it up to admire it more closely, and was admiring it when it fell and shattered to pieces.

She promptly replied: "I can, auntie, for the dust shows just where it was."

WHY BRAN IS SO ESSENTIAL

Everybody needs this roughage to incite bowel action. The effective form is flake bran, for the action is mechanical.

Your effort should be to make bran a delight. The best way is Pettijohn's. That is really wheat—the most flavorful wheat that grows. You'll be surprised to know that whole wheat can be so delicious.

Each flavorful flake hides bran flakes. The food is one-fourth bran, yet the bran is scarcely noticed.

Your people will welcome whole wheat and bran if you serve this dainty.

Treat tomorrow.

THE BAND BOX, Inc.

All Society to Attend Opening Night of Moscow Art Theater

In spite of the fact that Morris has emphasized again and again the fact that he does not wish to make the engagement of the Moscow Art theater a social event, the opening night will be one of the big society affairs of the year, for seemingly every one of social prominence in the city is planning to be there. Many dinner parties have been arranged to precede the performance and the hostesses are being even more insistent than they were during the opera season that their guests be prompt to early dinner, for the curtain rises promptly at 8 and no one is admitted thereafter until the first intermission, and not one, not even the most famous, wants to miss any of the performances.

Some of those who will have box parties are Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. and Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Smith, and Mr. Joseph Fish. "Tsar Fyodor Ivanovitch," a spectacular historical drama by Count Tolstoy, will be given.

One of the most interesting events of a week full of affairs of social interest will be a musical to be given this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Frederick D. Custer, 1824 Lake Shore drive, for the benefit of the music school of the Oliver Institute. Myrna Shallow, soprano; Florence Hough, pianist; Andie de Meester, violinist, and Taylor Housman will give the program. A group of students under the direction of Miss Betty Pitts will usher. Mrs. George Hailock Taylor is chairman of the ticket committee and Evan Evans is general chairman. Tickets may be obtained at the door.

"The Morality of the Old Testament" will be discussed by Dr. J. Bridger in the third of five lectures on "The Moral Systems of the Great Religions" this morning at 11 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum, 1608 State Parkway.

The Alliance Francaise is giving a reception this afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at its rooms in the Fine Arts building for M. Georges Passe, an exhibition of which landscapes of "Our France" will be opened on this occasion. Mrs. Edgar Cameron and Miss Elizabeth Wallace will pour.

The Chicago Club of Notre Dame, composed of students from this city now in attendance at the University of Notre Dame, will give its annual Easter fashion dance tonight at the Drake. Mrs. Edward N. Hurst, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, and Mrs. William E. Dever are among the presenters.

The Service league, of which Miss Marion Kimball is president, will give a benefit bridge party this evening at 8 o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Goss, 1424 Madison Avenue. There will be an entertainment, including an accordion solo by Louis Tilden, songs by Miss Josephine Parker and Miss Virginia Foster, and a dance by Miss Grace Benét and Blair Laughlin of the University of Chicago. Bud Coomb's Delta Delta orchestra will play for general entertainment.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., April 2.—(Special)—The Japanese ambassador, Masa-nao Hanbara, gave a dinner tonight for about thirty men to meet the Japanese scientists who are here as guests of the Rockefeller Foundation in New York.

The ambassador of Japan and Mrs. Hanbara are the guests for whom Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh and Mrs. John Allan Dougherty gave a reception with dancing in the home of Mrs. Walsh on Massachusetts avenue this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hitt, who were married last Saturday, have returned from their brief second honeymoon in New York and are with Mr. Hitt's mother, Mrs. R. R. Hitt, at the family residence in New Hampshire avenue.

A letter from Hot Springs, Va., word that it was the gayest Easter in the history of that fashionable resort, and that members of the Chicago colony were among the smartest promenaders in the Easter parade. During the day every one visited the shops and the colonnades of the city, while the women vied with the brilliant colors of the flowers. Prominent in the Chicago colony are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Dahl of 1820 Lake Shore drive, Olga and Anita, who have spent Easter in the spring for several years. With them this year is Mrs. C. B. Dahl's son, Count Anton Gleason III, of Philadelphia. The Chicago colony also includes Mr. and Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Allen B. Ripley, Mr. and Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, and Mrs. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Fairbanks and the Misses Corinne James, Ward Thorne and Bruce and Black Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. W. Irving Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner B. Van Ness, Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLean and Miss Jane McLean.

STATESMEN PULL STRANGE DEALS IN TAXING GAME

BY SCRUTATOR.

Statesmen favoring more taxes for the rich have provided $80,000,000 of tax exempt securities for the very same rich.

This was the amount of tax exempt farm loan securities outstanding on the first of the year. The new rural credit laws assure the issue of at least $50,000,000 more, nearly a third of all the tax exempt securities in existence twenty years ago.

"Tax the rich" advocates, as a rule, concentrate on federal taxation. Their principal program calls for the restoration of the heavy federal surtaxes and excess profits taxes of the war revenue law.

It is beginning to be noticed about the agricultural states that the statesmen have involved themselves in a vicious circle. Here is the tale the farmer is beginning to hear: To provide credit for the farmer, the big boys have increased the issue of tax exempt bonds and raised the interest rate. These bonds provide a retreat for much money that might otherwise have been available for mortgage loans. Its retirement tends to raise the interest rate on other money. Higher interest rates increase the tax burden. While attempting to tax the rich and help the farmer, somebody has really been taxing the farmer also.

Plenty of people are telling the farmer all about this. That mortgage money would be available for 4 per cent, if it were not for the federal surtaxes, is a story he frequently hears when renewing loans.

Federal expenditures have been reduced steadily since the 1919 peak. They cannot be cut much further as the war debt and sinking fund alone call for more than the whole amount of the budget for the year. But the tariff and the British payments are beginning to help. The recent increase in income tax collections and returns, paid under the existing rates, has also deprived the advocates of heavier tolls of the argument from necessity.

State and local taxes have been increasing since federal taxation began to decline. The national government took three-fifths of the people's tax money in 1919. Since 1919 the federal tax bill has fallen to half or less of the total burden. The national debt has been reduced by $4,000,000,000. The present tax rate totals $100,000,000 less per year than would be collected under the war revenue rates. But state and local taxes increased 21 per cent from 1919 to 1920, and 13 per cent from 1920 to 1921. Figures for 1922 are not yet available, but the states and their local subdivisions issued over a billion dollars worth of new bonds last year, fattening their annual interest bill to $6,000,000. No noticeable check in bond issues is in sight for 1923.

State and local tax burdens are heavier than the federal load in the very states from which half the most aggressive advocates of more taxes on the rich. There are exceptions to the rule, but a general summary of the statement will stand up from coast to coast.

Taxation will hardly be the progressive plank of 1924. The rabid faction of the farm bloc is pushing it again, but the members have been so pedaling since its adoption in 1920 that it is as soon as they got home they announced that transportation would be the big noise next year. A few splinters may be knocked off the bloc by this divergence on tactics, which is one expression of the speed differentials of the Brookhart-Ls Follett wing and the Cap-

Only a little while ago the cry of "tax the rich" was in highest favor. The stock dividend jag just before Christmas gave the boys a good roar. But even in the remoter farm counties it is becoming known that not one of the 66 corporations that issued a stock dividend there by held a nickel out of Uncle Al's Melting Pot. The stock market's present issues will prove useful as evidence that corporation surpluses are not excessive, and hence not subject to the penalties for withholding provided in the revenue law. If this were their object it reminds one of the Chinaman who burned down the house to roast a pig.

Cotton Manufacturers Offer 12½% Wage Boost

Fall River, Mass., April 2.—An offer of a wage increase of 12½ per cent, effective April 20, was made by the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Fall River today to the 36,000 cotton operatives of this city. The Textile council, which represents six of the large textile unions, had demanded an increase of 15 per cent. Other workers affiliated with a rival union, the United Textile Workers of America, have asked for an increase of 25 per cent and authorized a strike to enforce their demands. The unions have called special meetings for Thursday to vote on the manufacturers' offer.

EXCHANGE MEMBER EXPELLED. NEW YORK, April 2.—The expulsion of S. Bartle Landis from the Consolidated Stock Exchange on charges of "obvious fraud and false statement" was voted at a meeting today by directors of the exchange. Officials said evidence in the case would be turned over to the district attorney.

GRAINS RISE ON CROP SCARE, BUT CLOSE AT A LOSS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A crop scare in the southwest lifted the price of July and September wheat to a new high for the season, but the scare was not maintained, due to the forecast for rain or snow with rain in Kansas and Oklahoma reported during the day. Closing trades were at the bottom, with net losses of 14 1/2¢. Oats were off 14 1/2¢, oats 14 1/2¢, and rye 14 1/2¢.

There was active buying of July and September wheat early on bullish reports from western Kansas sent in by local experts. Snow's report showing a condition of 11.8 or 5 points under the December return was responsible for a bulge in the previous day's finish. Outside trade shows a tendency to broaden, but the rain reports led to profit taking by some of the buyers of last week and the decline at the last.

General run of domestic and foreign statistics made a bullish showing, but had little effect, as is natural in a crop market. Cold weather continues in the northwest, with temperatures below zero in the Canadian northwest, and there is increased apprehension of delayed seeding and a smaller acreage. Foreign markets were closed.

Cash Corn Shows Decline.

Corn made the highest prices at the opening and the lowest at the close. There was a general liquidation in the market with the assistance of a decline of 14 1/2¢ as compared with futures the finish was with a heavy undertone. A cash house bought May and sold July, although the spread at the last was about 2 1/2¢, against 3 1/2¢ Saturday. Shipping demand here was fair and in the west rather active. Country offerings light.

Trade reports to date show fairly good progress in parts of central Illinois, with the decline in other grains, more than offset the forecast for unfavorable weather and the market showed an easy undertone. Trade was mostly of a local character. Visible supply is now 40,000,000 bushels less than last year. Pressure from local traders and houses has been the chief factor in the lower level range for rye. Export demand was slow and little attention was paid to reports of damage to the winter rye crop in North Dakota. The two northwestern markets had 74 cars.

Provisions Close Strong.

Provisions showed a strong undertone. There was a fair run of investment orders in July lard and ribs which offset selling by packers. Bulge to the high point of the day was on short covering induced by reports of good export demand for lard. The latter was up 15¢, 17¢ and ribs 22¢@25¢ higher. Exports of lard and meats for the week aggregated 60,000,000 lbs, compared with 48,000,000 the previous week and 19,000,000 the last year. Prices follow:

The New York Times.

New York, April 2.—(Special)—Resumption today of the downward movement in stocks, which was temporarily halted last week by news that the reserve bank conference was not planning immediate and drastic advance of rediscount rates, was evidence that there were other reasons for the decline in prices since the middle of March.

The truth of the matter is that, quite irrespective of the reserve board's policies, the recent money market had not been favorable to continuance of speculation on the rise. It is a familiar phenomenon, an opportunity for employment of funds in active trade, with the result that speculative markets no longer have command of the seemingly unbounded supply of idle money which had been at their service while trade was idle.

This shifting of credit resources back to the channels of trade, from which they had been released by the previous liquidation and depression, is usually felt first in the bond market. It must also have been felt, however, on the more specific markets.

Big Decrease in Value of Machinery Manufactured

Washington, D. C., April 2.—Big decreases in the value of various kinds of machinery manufactured during 1922, as compared with 1919, are shown in reports of the census bureau announced today. There were, however, slight increases in a few cases. The total value of the manufacture of machinery amounted to $1,225,059,000 in 1922, as compared with $1,590,224,000 in 1919. The decreases in value of such articles as engines, tools and engines, and electrical apparatus are not included in the totals, their value being compiled as individual industries.

The match manufacturing industry of the United States had an increase of 64 per cent in the value of its products between 1919 and 1921, and an increase of 14 per cent in the seven year period from 1914 to 1921. The value of matches, according to such makers as dividends were freely circulated. In the case of the railway shares this random talk was supplemented by gloomy discussion of the February earnings, which showed no better understanding of the situation.

The movement in today's foreign exchange market was as follows: It was throughout last week. Sterling hardly moved; the franc declined to the lowest rate since Friday, then recovered practically all its loss; the German mark meantime being bid up to the "pegged price" at which it stood unmoved during the greater part of March.

"The statements herein, while not guaranteed, are based upon information and advice which we believe to be accurate and reliable."

The scrupulous investment banker uses this phrase in security advertisements as a technical defense—not as a moral one.

He is as conscientiously concerned in the accuracy of his statements as you are, because upon them he is staking not only his money but his reputation for integrity.

He would not be content with the opinion of an undergraduate law student as to the legality of the issue—or with the estimate of a bookkeeper as to the earnings account.

Nor should he exercise less discretion in ascertaining the value of the physical properties pledged as security. Values are, in a sense, a narrow ridge with infinite possibilities for error on either side.

The appraisal of The American Appraisal Company guards against these errors by demanding that each dollar of value certified to be capable of specific proof. Ours is an organization schooled in the evaluation of billions of dollars of property, organized to so balance the human measurement of value as to make of an American Appraisal a statement of irrefutable accuracy.

To the banker it offers an authority for which he needs no defense—technical or moral. To the investor it offers a definiteness of facts which protects his interests and facilitates his choice of the securities offered him.
